Germans Smashing Way into Caucasus Oil Fields

Invaders Reach Maikop in Drive Toward Seacoast

Oil Wells Blasted in Application of Scorched Earth Policy

Vital Naval Base of Novorossisk Is Goal of Invaders

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW, Tuesday, Aug. 11 (AP)—Powerful German armies have swept to the vicinity of Maikop in the Caucasus and the Russians along a broad front are fighting a fierce defensive battle with their backs to the Black Sea. It was revealed by the Russian midnight communiqué today.

The Russians were engaged in what appeared to be the opening phase of a defense of the vital naval base of Novorossisk, sixty miles west of Krasnodar, where fighting was reported.

Nazis Hold Maikop Area
The Germans already had a firm foothold in the Maikop region, which produces seven per cent of Russia's oil, and now appeared to be menacing the naval base—one of Russia's most important and one of the last refuges of the Soviet fleet in the Black Sea.

It was the first official indication by the Russians that their retreat in the face of smashes by German mechanized and air units had reached the Maikop region. The Germans claimed the capture of the city, important as a petroleum distributing center, Sunday. The Russian communiqué said also that heavy fighting in this region extends to Krasnodar and Armavir, indicating a part of the German drive was veering toward the seacoast. Another German thrust appeared to be heading into the heart of the Caucasus, to the east. This depressing news from the Caucasus was relieved somewhat by Russian reports of the vigor with which industrial Stalingrad was being defended. There were fierce battles near Kotelnikovsky, ninety-five miles southwest of the industrial metropolis, and in the region of Kleitskaya, seventy-five miles to the northwest.

The determination of the Russian stand before Stalingrad was indicated by casualties inflicted on the Germans in the region of Kleitskaya. In one small sector 2,800 Germans were killed and three tanks destroyed, the communiqué said.

In another sector the Russian aviators reported destroying twenty-three tanks and about sixty trucks (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

93 "Terrorists" Executed by Nazis

VICHY, Aug. 10 (AP)—German authorities in Paris announced tonight the execution of ninety-three "terrorists" as the result of a series of recent anti-German attacks. The announcement was signed by Brig. Gen. Oberg, chief of the SS and police in occupied territories. It warned the population it must "exercise the greatest vigilance to enable the detection of terrorist machinations, otherwise I will be obliged to take measures under which the entire population will suffer."

Gen. Oberg said the "terrorist attacks" were perpetrated by those in the pay of Britain.

War Production Effort Criticized In Report of Special House Group

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—A special House committee reported to Congress today that the nation's war production effort "continues to lag" and the recent realignment of the War Production Board "does nothing to correct this situation." "There has nowhere been evidenced any intention on the part of the responsible officials, civilian or military, to regard it as their job to demand maximum output or to move heaven and earth to get it," commented the committee, headed by Representative Tolson (D-Calif.) and including Representatives Sparkman (D-Ala.), Arnold (D-Ill.), Bender (R-Ohio) and Curtis (R-Neb.).

The report emphasized the necessity of integrating manpower mobilization with production mobiliza-

KEY REMOVED FROM CHILD'S LARYNX

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10 (AP)—A key used to open a peanut can was removed today from the larynx of four-year-old Sharon Bell (above) who came by plane and train from Vancouver, B. C. for the operation at Temple University Hospital.

The half-hour operation was performed by Dr. C. L. Jackson, son of the inventor of the Bronchoscopic, used for removing foreign bodies from the throat. In this particular operation, he used a variation known as an esophagoscope.

Hospital attendants said the child was "resting comfortably" and would be released in about a week. Her father, Gordon Bell, Vancouver policeman, arrived about two hours after the operation. The child was brought here by her aunt, Mrs. Eileen Murschison.

Germans Prepare To Scorch Earth On the Continent

Also Ready To Sacrifice Women and Children When Invasion Comes

LONDON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Belgian circles said tonight that German occupation troops had been ordered to burn or destroy everything in sight if forced to retreat before Allied troops invading the continent.

Belgian circles said an order found in the possession of a high German officer authorized a total scorched earth policy in event the second front drive was undertaken.

German officers were authorized to burn towns and shoot leading citizens and Belgian army officers without hearings, the Belgian sources said.

One portion of the order was reported to have read:

"Advance in columns with groups of women and young girls at the head of troops or trucks to prevent guerrillas or parachutists from operating against us. Nothing should be left after the rear guard has passed through."

"It is hoped that the National War Labor Board will assume initial jurisdiction on this dispute inasmuch as the issues involved are identical to the issues that were raised in the cases affecting the 'Little Steel' companies and passed upon by the War Labor Board."

Existing contracts between the union and the United States Steel subsidiaries expired Sunday, under the twenty-day clause, but Murray (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Huckster Attacked By Two Highwaymen

BALTIMORE, Aug. 10 (AP)—Scores of police were on the look-out late today for two men who held up Jose Carus, forty-five-year-old huckster, and shot him five times when he fought rather than relinquish $50 he was carrying.

Carus was reported in a serious condition at a hospital from a wound in the head and others in the ear, arm and chest.

Murray Appeals Big Steel Case To Labor Board

Reports Deadlock in Negotiations between Men and Employers

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10 (AP)—CIO President Philip Murray announced today that negotiations between the United Steelworkers of America and five United States steel corporations have been broken off and the case has been referred to the war labor board.

Murray said the union was handed a statement by the corporations at today's conference—the fifth meeting of the negotiating committees—which said:

"It has been impossible to agree to all of the provisions of the so-called 'Little Steel' directives."

Murray, president of the USW, explained that the primary issues over which there was disagreement were the "directives" previously awarded the union in the cases involving Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Inland Steel—a 5½ cent-an-hour wage boost; minimum daily guarantee and union security and the check-off. He added:

"It is hoped that the National War Labor Board will assume initial jurisdiction on this dispute inasmuch as the issues involved are identical to the issues that were raised in the cases affecting the 'Little Steel' companies and passed upon by the War Labor Board."

Lack of Material May Force Plants To Close

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Fears that "as many as 1,000" war plants might be forced to cut production this month and next for lack of materials were voiced by the Labor Policy committee of the War Production Board in a resolution adopted July 30, it was learned tonight.

A WPB source who asked that his name be withheld said the resolution declared that several thousand men had been laid off in July by stoppages or production curtailments in more than thirty plants holding war contracts.

The resolution, which was presented to WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson, asked that greater unity and a better exchange of information be set up among WPB, the armed services and other agencies so that shutdowns could be headed off.

The Labor Policy committee, created to advise WPB's labor production division, is composed of union representatives, three each from the AFL and CIO

Americans Soon To Open Attacks On Nazi Forces

Fighter and Bomber Units Preparing To Blast Nazi Cities

By WES GALLAGHER
LONDON, Aug. 10 (AP)—American fighter and bomber forces "within the immediate future" will join the RAF in blasting Hitler's great industrial cities and driving his planes from the English channel.

This pledge came today from the commander of the United States air forces in the European theater, Major Gen. Carl "Toughy" Spaatz. He declared further that United States air forces eventually would rise to 400,000 fliers and ground crew men and that there was complete cooperation and understanding with the RAF, which now has nearly three full years of active fighting experience with Hitler's planes.

Large Force Arrives
Giving point to his assertions, made shortly after a flying inspection of United States airbases in these islands was the announced arrival of additional contingents of American troops. Air force men as well as units of all other combat forces were in the fresh convoy which arrived on an unspecified date.

Thousands upon thousands of American airmen and soldiers have been working day and night adapting British fields to their use, enlarging others and carving out additional bases. Every effort has been made to complete a vast amount of ground work necessary within a record time.

The American air force is expected to begin operations on a considerable scale and gradually shoulder a full share of the burden from the RAF in "scouring the Reich."

Early Attack Predicted
"Within the immediate future, operations in accordance with plans that have been in the making between the Royal Air Force and the American air forces will commence," Gen. Spaatz said.

"The American and Royal Air Forces have worked in such full cooperation that we are proceeding ahead of actual schedule. Our enemy at the appointed time will feel the might of a thoroughly coordinated British and American air force."

Board Drafts Program
What targets the Americans will bomb has not been decided fully. The bombing program is being drafted by the British ministry of economic warfare and the American Economic Warfare Board.

Bad weather and the vast amount of unspectacular ground work preparatory to the actual raids had been delaying American operations. The weather, which has kept the RAF grounded for a good part of the last six weeks, has prevented American crews from taking necessary practice flights around Britain to acquaint themselves with the countryside. This is necessary before raids abroad can start.

No Announcement In Case of Aroff

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10 (AP)—Making no announcement as to guilt or innocence, a six-man naval court martial late today adjourned its hearing into seven charges of misconduct and falsehood against Lieut. Commander Maurice N. Aroff, including one that he accepted an automobile from Singer Tony Martin.

London Has Alert

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 11 (AP)—London's air raid sirens sounded early this morning, waking the capital's millions, but the all clear followed shortly, and there were no reported bombings.

Low-Slung Landing Boats Believed Used by Marines in the Solomons

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Snub-nosed, low-slung landing boats with twin machine-guns jutting from their armored bows and from thirty to fifty fully-armed leathernecks loaded aboard, strike most effectively against resistance in landing attacks, marine corps officials said today.

Such boats have been built for the marines by the Higgins shipyards in New Orleans. They may well have been used in the Solomon island landing battle, although there was no definite information on that point.

CONTRABAND SEIZED BY FBI AGENTS IN ALIEN RAID

Pictured is part of the loot seized by FBI agents when they raided the homes of a number of aliens in Chester and Marcus Hook, Pa. The loot includes radios, cameras, field glasses, knives, rifles, pistols, shells, shotguns and several portraits of Hitler. In addition to the customary search for contraband, a number of arrests were made by the Federal men. A short-wave radio receiver was found in one of the raided homes.

Japanese Well Fixed for Oil, Americans Find

Returning Correspondents Sure Nips Have Won Battle for Motor Fuel

By The Associated Press
The Swedish liner Gripsholm arrived at Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, for a 48-hour stop yesterday (Monday) with 1,500 north and south Americans glad to be in the Western Hemisphere again after their experiences at the hands of Japanese jailers and police.

Some of them had spent years in Japan or the Far East, and many, especially the North Americans, had spent about five months in prison, following their internment on Dec. 7. Among them were three Associated Press correspondents.

Max Hill, of Colorado Springs, Colo., chief of bureau in Tokyo since 1940, reported that United States authorities were taking great precautions to prevent Japanese or Axis-planted spies from slipping into the United States aboard the Gripsholm.

Joseph Dynan, of Chicago, also a Tokyo correspondent, said Japanese sources informed him of negotiations between Tokyo and Moscow in which Soviet Russia was being asked to make territorial concessions in the Far East.

Reiman Morin, former chief of bureau in Tokyo, and later a correspondent in French Indo-China, here tells how Japan already has won her battle for oil self-sufficiency.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 10 (AP)—American experts returning from Japanese territory on the Swedish exchange liner Gripsholm seem to be of one mind that from the standpoint of fuel oil the Japanese can go all out indefinitely with ships, tanks and planes in the Pacific war. No Pennies Used In Alaska Prices

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Pennies are out in figuring Alaska's ceiling prices.

Explaining that pennies are not used as a medium of exchange in many Alaskan communities, Price Administrator Leon Henderson today ordered maximum prices adjusted to the nearest nickel.

While old-style rubber landing boats are some times used in surprise stabs at enemy coasts, the new low-silhouetted craft strike better in pitched battles, the officials said.

They are piloted by a navy man or coastguardsman. The marines climb down the side of the large navy ships or transports into the landing boats, into which is then lowered their full battle equipment, including light machine guns. Later the vessels are used to bring up the heavier guns and mortars.

American Fliers Attack Haiphong

Fighters and Bombers Deal Japanese Base Severe Blow

By SPENCER MOOSA
CHUNGKING, Aug. 10 (AP)—Catching the Japanese completely off guard, both fighters and bombers of the United States army air force attacked the big invasion port of Haiphong, Indo-China, Sunday and got back to base without a loss, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

It was the Americans' first raid on Haiphong, and the communiqué took special note of the "complete lack of hostile opposition as proving the element of surprise."

Allied Bombers Also Bomb Enemy in Heights of New Guinea

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Tuesday, Aug. 11—Allied bombers again roared out over the waters off northeastern Australia Monday to attack Japanese positions on the island fringes of the Solomon battle theater. Allied headquarters announced in its daily communiqué today.

In addition Allied patrols fighting in the inland heights of New Guinea forced small but strong Japanese forces in the Kokoda area to withdraw to prepared positions, the Allied command announced.

Nazi Rail Center Bombed by R.A.F.

LONDON, Aug. 10 (AP)—The key railway center of Osnabrueck was rocked last night by "an enormous explosion" while a strong RAF force unloaded a great weight of bombs on the northwest German city, returning pilots said today.

Fires were visible from the Dutch coast and reconnaissance planes reported the city still was smoldering today.

Osnabrueck is one of the main railroad outlets for the German armaments in the Ruhr. It also has a big steel works.

Six British bombers were lost and one fighter was missing. The docks at Le Havre, France, and air fields in Holland and Belgium also were attacked.

Ideal weather permitted the British and Canadian fliers to see their targets plainly.

Many Casualties In Indian Revolt Against British

Bombay Reports Indicate Situation Is Growing Worse

By PRESTON GROVER
BOMBAY, Aug. 10 (AP)—Mohandas Gandhi's "do or die" zealots defied police bullets time after time in Bombay and elsewhere today, rioting and striking in prolonged response to the all-India Congress campaign of mass civil disobedience designed to drive the British from this sub-continent.

In Bombay alone in two days of disorder police and troops fired on crowds "about ten times," a provincial government communiqué said tonight. There were numerous casualties today, in addition to the eleven dead and scores injured on Sunday. Of Sunday's casualties, eight were slain and 158 injured in the Bombay area alone.

Situation Growing Worse
Late today the situation was growing progressively worse in northern sections of this city, with crowds stoning trains, cutting wires and smashing police lamps. A post office was attacked, several buses were damaged badly and abandoned by their drivers.

Regular troops were deployed throughout Bombay in patrols ranging from a dozen to a full platoon, but for the most part they merely stood armed guard about their trucks, leaving actual repressive measures to the police.

Two Congressmen Flay Newspapers Of Opposite Sides in the Campaign

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—In bitter speeches on opposite sides of the Capitol, Senator Brooks (R-Ill.) today protested what he termed "insidious intimidation" of the press and Congress, while Rep. Holland (D-Pa.) charged three Metropolitan newspaper publishers with "moral sabotage."

Brooks declared in the Senate that there was a well-organized, well-financed "purge and smear campaign" underway, directed at himself and other members of Congress, and at newspapers which supported his candidacy for reelection.

Warships, Planes Aid in Attempt To Dislodge Foe

Americans Lose One Cruiser when Japanese Launch Counter-Attack

Many Enemy Planes Destroyed and Surface Units Are Crippled

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Force of hard-bitten American marines spearhead of America's first offensive in the Pacific, has landed on the strategic Solomon islands flanking Australia and is now engaged in a terrific struggle with counter-attacking Japanese.

Disclosing today, the navy revealed that the furious assault, in which the marines were strongly backed by warships and planes, had already cost the United States forces at least one cruiser sunk and two damaged, and two destroyers and one transport also damaged.

Japanese Attack Rapid
The Japanese, whose counter-attack was launched "with rapidity and vigor," have suffered a "large number" of planes destroyed and surface units put out of action, the navy statement said.

How many lives have been lost in the grim amphibious struggle was not known, but such a landing attack is one of the most difficult operations in warfare, and the navy statement warned that "considerable losses" must be expected.

First American Offensive
The statement was issued by Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of all American forces. He described the operation as "our first assumption of the initiative and of the offensive" in this war and declared the purpose it to drive the Japs out of the southeasterly Solomon islands, their southernmost point of advance in the Pacific.

In a special statement on the progress of the three-day-old battle, the admiral described the section directly contested as the Tulagi area. Tulagi, the capital of the Solomons, is situated on Florida Island. The broad wording possibly meant that landings had been accomplished not only on Florida but also on the nearby large islands of Guadalcanal and Malita.

Bengasi Raided By U. S. Bombers

CAIRO, Aug. 10 (AP)—At least one Axis ship was hit and the harbor damaged in a raid on the supply port of Bengasi by a large formation of United States army bombers at dawn Sunday. All planes, an announcement said, returned safely.

British and South African bombers at the same time attacked enemy shipping off the North African coast and grounded Axis planes in the El Daba area west of El Alamein.

The land front was quiet, but it was noted that forward groups of American army tank crews have virtually completed their advanced training in the Egyptian desert and are ready to go into action with General Grant tanks.

of the New York Daily News and Eleanor Patterson of the Washington Times Herald. He said that their publications "are in spirit and in conduct members of the 'vermin press.'"

Brooks named the Chicago Tribune as the object of a "vicious, malicious and constant attack," and declared that "whether Wayland Brooks is returned to the senate or not is incidental, but whether the power of this government is to be used to suppress the freedom of the press is of vital and burning importance to all the American people."

State Primaries In Five States Draw Attention

New York State Contests Involve Roosevelt Leadership

(By The Associated Press)

As candidates go to the primary post in five states today (Tuesday), two New York contests involving presidential power and pre-war policies take the political spotlight away from the polling activities in Idaho, Ohio and Nebraska and the Democratic run-off between two Arkansas senatorial aspirants.

Vying for voters' attention in the Empire State primary is the Democratic gubernatorial battle between Senator James H. Mead and State Attorney General John J. Bennett, and the Republican intra-party fight featured by the efforts of three candidates to unseat Representative Hamilton Fish.

Roosevelt, Farley Split

President Roosevelt has said he would support Mead if he had a vote in the party's August 19 convention, while the president's one-time campaign manager, James A. Farley, is back of Bennett. (Delegates to the convention are chosen today.)

Fish, caustic critic of administration foreign policy before Pearl Harbor, represents Mr. Roosevelt's home district. Opposition to the representative was split among Augustus W. Bennett, Newburgh attorney; State Assemblyman Emerson D. Fite, Vassar College professor; and Edward J. Bowen, several-time candidate in the past.

Ohio's Republican Governor John W. Bricker had no Republican opposition in his quest for a third term. Five men sought the Democratic nomination: Frank A. Dye, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson; Walter F. Heer, a county Democratic committee chairman; former State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley; and former Representative John McSweeney. All Ohio incumbent congressmen seek re-nomination except Democratic Representative Robert T. Secrest who resigned to keep his lieutenant commander's post in the naval reserve.

Battle in Nebraska

In Nebraska, Republican Governor Dwight Griswold has one opponent for re-nomination, while three seek the Democratic nod. Three Republicans and seven Democrats vie for party endorsement for the United States Senate post of veteran George W. Norris who has not yet said whether he would run again on the independent ticket.

Idaho's governor Chase A. Clark, a Democrat, asked re-nomination and William Dettweiler, Thomas D. McDougall and C. A. Bottolfsen battled for the Republican endorsement. Republican U. S. Senator John Thomas had two party opponents, while five Democrats were in the race to oppose him.

The Arkansas run-off pitted former Representative John McClellan and Attorney General Jack Holt against each other for the Senate spot on the Democratic ticket. Democratic Governor Homer M. Arkins already has won re-nomination and Republicans will pick their candidates a subsequent state convention.

Pay for Dependents Will Not Be Ready Before November 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Senator Thomas (D-Utah) told the Senate today that its military affairs committee had decided to pigeon-hole a proposal to start paying allowances to service men's dependents before November 1. The War Department, he said, believed it impossible to start payments before that date.

The department's opposition also was brought to the attention of the House.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who sponsored legislation to begin payments before November 1, objected that many dependents of service men were in need and the amendment should be reported out of committee, without approval if necessary, for action on the floor.

Execution of Nazis Serious, Berlin Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—The German radio, in its first comment on the execution of six Nazi saboteurs in Washington Saturday, said today the executions were "a serious event whose consequences enemy countries could not ignore."

This quotation was attributed to a German foreign office spokesman.

By its action, the radio said, the United States "forfeited the right of protesting against the condemnation of saboteurs in the territory occupied by the German army."

"Henceforth," the German radio said, "no one on the side of the enemies of the Axis would in the least be entitled to criticize such German measures in the hinterland of the German front, particularly as such measures would be also in the interests of the populations of the regions in question."

Defends Publisher

"I would not and I do not approve the reporting of any information that would in any way aid the enemy and neither would Colonel McCormick nor Pat Maloney. Both he and Pat Maloney are outstanding, patriotic, heroic American citizens."

On the House floor, Hollard, in discussing McCormick and the Pattersons, declared:

"Separate their editorials from the trappings of a large city newspaper, publish them as a separate book and read them as a continuous theme. You will see their net effect is to preach defeatism among our civilians and mutiny among our soldiers; to spread dismay among our allies, and to create joy in the hearts of our enemies."

Hollard referred at one point to the execution last Saturday of six Nazi saboteurs, and said that "all the physical sabotage they planned, had it been successfully executed, could not accomplish one-half of the damage done by the moral sabotage committed by Joseph Medill Patterson, Eleanor Patterson and Robert McCormick."

Warships, Planes

chief of the Pacific fleet, King said. The purpose of expelling the Japanese from the Solomons, King said, is to "make use of that area for our own purposes." Such purposes could include the launching of a general offensive to roll the Japanese back through the Dutch East Indies and their mandated islands into the China Sea.

King's statement contained the first disclosure that the Tulagi action had involved landing operations and that violent land fighting—first on a large scale between American and Japanese since the fall of Bataan—actually was in progress. Previously the United States units had been described merely as "naval and other" forces.

The landings were made as planned, King reported, after "an initial surprise attack" had been effected, presumably by surface craft and airplanes. A spokesman was not at first clear as to whether troops other than marines were also on hand, but later said the best information here was that marines alone were doing the job.

Air Force in Action

Forces under direct command of General Douglas MacArthur in Australia are cooperating with the naval and marine units, but those were presumed here to be land-based air forces.

As to damage dealt and suffered Admiral King said information was incomplete and that the report of six American ships blasted as well as the injury done to the enemy ships and planes was incomplete.

He explained that "our operating forces are employing all available operations in the conduct of the operations."

"Considerable losses, such as are inherent in any offensive operation," King added, "must be expected as the price to be paid for the hard-won experience to the attainment of far-reaching results."

This is the first time that American troops have engaged in amphibious actions in this war, although it has long been said by naval officers that amphibious attack against Japan's network of island bases in the Pacific is one of the ways by which victory eventually must be achieved.

Yet amphibious warfare is regarded as the most difficult of all warfare, because of the necessity of split second coordination between land, sea and air forces.

Jap Type of Warfare

It is a kind of warfare in which the Japanese, with their long experience in the China sea campaign, should excel.

There had been indications from the very first—when the Tulagi attack was announced tersely by the navy last Saturday—that the present operation might be the start of amphibious war for the United States. The Solomons, it is apparent, would be a logical starting point since they lie like a frontier between the Allied base of Australia and its subsidiary islands on the carrying troops and supplies to anti-aircraft batteries.

Nazi Attack Repulsed

The Germans attacked in the Voronezh area after an intensive artillery preparation, the communiqué continued. All Nazi thrusts in this region were repulsed with heavy losses, it said.

The Russians reported the destruction of two enemy transports, one in the Barents and the other in the Black Sea. The vessels totaled 12,000 tons, the Russian communiqué stated.

The Germans struck at Krasnodar with large numbers of tanks and motorized infantry. The Russians met the attack with cavalry, tanks and fighting planes. The Russians in this region realized they were defending their important Black Sea naval base at Novorossiysk, sixty miles to the west.

Two squadrons of Rumanian cavalry and one battalion of German infantry were routed in these engagements.

Destroy Oil Wells

Northeast of Kotelnikovski the battle for Stalingrad has taken on a "very tense character," the communiqué added. One railway station in this area changed hands several times, and in the evening it was in Russian possession.

As the Russians withdrew explosions resounded over vast areas and clouds of smoke hung over the countryside, indicating the Red army had ruthlessly applied the torch to petroleum installations.

Lack Lubricating Oil

The one type which they may have difficulty in getting in sufficient quantities is lubricating oil, the experts said. The acquisition of oil fields in Dutch and British Borneo, the Netherlands Indies, and the Yenang Yang field in Burma, will not help the Japanese greatly in this respect because none of these areas produces the type of crude oil from which top grade lubricating oil can be refined without special refinery equipment.

(The Dutch scorched earth policy probably destroyed most, if not all, of the special equipment in the captured areas.)

Before the war virtually all the lubricating oil used by the Japanese came from the United States. The Pacific fields have a base composed principally of asphalt and a paraffin base is necessary for ready and extensive extraction of the lubricating oil most suitable. Here are the figures—An estimated 40,000,000 barrels in storage before hostilities started. This is believed to be the equivalent of eighteen months' normal consumption.

HONGKONG — The Japanese probably found between 15,000 and 20,000 tons of diesel and fuel oil destroyed, "plenty of kerosene," and about 40,000 gallons of motor gasoline.

PHILIPPINES — The Pandekan

storage areas were understood to have been completely destroyed.

Much Oil from Singapore

SINGAPORE — Amounts were captured in all categories. Nearly twice the amount of oil captured in Hongkong in all categories was seized.

NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES—The Dutch demolition machinery was well organized long before the war. All storage facilities in Borneo, Java and Sumatra were believed blown sky high, conversely, it was understood that supplies at Sarawak, British possession on North Borneo, were taken intact.

The figures are unknown. Japan's main problem will be transportation. Americans believe that within three to six months all but a few oil fields in Burma, Java, Sumatra and Borneo will be operating again, but there are no refineries left in those areas. Hence tankers must take the crude oil to Japan. The lone refinery in the southern Orient is at Bangkok. It is too small to handle more than a trickle of the high test gasoline Japan needs.

Japan also is equipped to produce oil and gasoline synthetically from coal. Experts said her annual production exceeded 1,000,000 barrels.

Germany's Version

(The Germans said they had captured Pyatigorsk in the Caucasus foothills 170 miles southwest of Makhachkala Russian counterattacks were reported southwest of Stalingrad. A "strong enemy army" was reported enveloped by the Germans in the Don bend west of Kalach, Russian attacks southwest of Rzhnev were said to have been repulsed.)

While the Russians fought in full vigor in tropical heat from nearly 500 miles from Voronezh to Armavir, a United States supply mission headed by Major Gen. Follett Bradley continued important conferences with Soviet generals to expedite supplies to keep the Red army slugging.

"I have faith that the Soviets will stand fast," Gen. Bradley said. The Russians praised United States Airacobra and other planes fighting the Germans. Bradley said his mission "has nothing to do with a second front."

Kaiser To Turn Out Large Ships In Record Time

Will Build Liberty Vessels in 35 Days, Spokesman Declares

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 10 (AP)—The Oregon Shipbuilding Corporation, which has built a liberty ship in forty-six days—a national record—promised today to cut at least eleven days from that record.

"You haven't seen anything yet," a spokesman said.

The corporation reported completion of a new assembly plant which will permit construction of the 10,500-ton cargo carriers, from keel-laying to delivery, in thirty-five days or less.

The new plant operates something like sub-assembly plants in the automobile and aviation industry, and feeds completed sections of ships to assemblymen on the ways.

Edgar Kaiser, general manager and son of Henry J. Kaiser who is going to build 500 fifty-ton flying boats for the government, said this new development in production speeds construction of ships in three ways:

1. It eliminates congestion of men and materials in hulls on the ways.

2. It offers overhead protection to workmen, eliminating the weather as a factor in efficiency.

3. It breaks down assembly into many specialized jobs.

The plant is divided into eleven bays, each 240 feet long and seventy-five wide. As the men and women workers assemble the bulkheads, forepeaks, bottom sections and other parts, some weighing seventy tons, huge Diesel-powered tractors ferry them into the way for final assembly.

At the head of each bay are storage areas holding material and parts for a half dozen completed parts. His feature makes for true mass production.

"We plan in terms of several ships at once, and do not complete one ship before we start on another," Kaiser said.

Storm Death List Increased to Three

(By The Associated Press)

The toll of lives taken by the near record rains that swept over Maryland during the weekend reached three yesterday when Harrington Pritchett, 26, Cambridge, died from injuries suffered in an auto accident that earlier took the life of Miss Betty Marine, 26, also of Cambridge.

Their station wagon skidded off the Trappe road early Sunday morning during a driving downpour and crashed into a tree.

The third casualty, also the victim of a vehicular accident, was James L. Leonard, Dundalk.

For the rest, conditions were reported returning rapidly to normal. Streams were receding and skies were clear.

area of New Guinea's Papuan peninsula, is where the enemy has established a base threatening Port Moresby, sixty miles away.

The Allied bombers hit three Japanese ships off Timor in the Dutch East Indies northwest of Australia, probably sinking one, the communiqué said.

The Allied air operation apparently having most bearing on the Solomon battle, however, was an attack on Rabaul, a New Britain port northwest of the Solomons where Japanese have established their strongest base in this entire area.

By striking Rabaul—as they did Sunday night—the Allies were hammering steadily at a base whence the Japanese were working in defense of their Solomon holdings.

Drive for Solomons

Strong forces of the Pacific fleet, land-based bombers and marines fought resolutely tonight to drive the Japanese from their strong positions in the southeastern Solomon islands in the fourth day of the United States' first offensive of the war.

The trend of battle in the island-studded waters at the north of the Coral Sea could not be guessed since fleet radio transmitters were sealed while the great naval rifles spoke. But it was known that the Japanese garrisons, planes and warships were contesting the U. S. attack with every means at their command.

Australian units as well as the United States southwest Pacific fleet based on New Zealand were fighting the powerful Pacific fleet battleships.

The fighting appeared centered on Tulagi, probably the strongest Japanese base in the Solomons which lie 900 miles northeast of this island continent, and on Guadalcanal island which is one of the few in the Solomon group suitable for airfields.

The Japanese were known to have concentrated considerable land and sea forces in the region under attack, and it appeared probable that Gen. MacArthur and the Pacific fleet commander, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, decided to strike powerfully at once to erase an invasion threat against this continent.

Once before in May, a naval task force attacked a threatening enemy concentration on the Coral Sea and the blows were so shattering that the enemy licked its wounds for two months.

Standley Finds Russian People Disappointed about Second Front

MOSCOW, Aug. 10 (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley said tonight that he had found disappointment among the Russian people because no second front had been established by the Allies in western Europe, but the envoy said that no such sentiment was encountered among Soviet officials.

"I believe the official Russian attitude is that creation of a second front must depend upon the strategic situation and must be left to strategists, Admiral Standley said. Defending the Russian people's attitude as he knew it, he continued: "I would say they are not impatient because none (a second front) has been started; rather I would say it is a disappointment."

Asked if he thought that Russia could go on if no second front were soon created, Admiral Standley replied:

"I have not found the slightest indication that the Russians have any idea of quitting."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Admiral King's warning reminder that victory and war experience must be paid for with "considerable losses" deserves as much stress as his gratifying report that an initial landing has been accomplished in the Solomons.

Even before the naval commander-in-chief gave the first definite tidings from the scene officers familiar with the hazards involved were grim as they awaited an intimation of the price of a triumph in blood and warships.

Balanced against the score made against the Japanese when they were on the offensive, the loss thus far of a single cruiser plus the damaging of other warships is more than reasonable.

Operation Difficult

King's advice that the operation now in progress is one of the "most complicated and difficult in warfare," suggests inevitably, however, that it may be only a down payment.

Even when such an assault can be carried out with overwhelming strength and with benefit of surprise, to dislodge a determined foe who has had months to dig in ranks in difficulty near the top of all problems a commander may face.

Beginning with the British sea attack on Narvik in Norway, the costly nature of such an amphibious enterprise has been dramatized repeatedly — by the German conquest of Crete, and by Japanese actions in the battles of Macassar and the Java sea and most recently off Midway.

Even in the Philippines, where the invaders completely dominated the air and sea and were opposed ashore by a relatively weak land force, they paid heavily at Lingayen Gulf and at Legaspi.

Japs More Experienced

Then too, as the admiral noted, the Solomons venture is the first of the kind for the United Nations. The Japanese and Nazis had months and in some instances years in which to perfect their teamwork between air, sea and land forces. Prior to Pearl Harbor, the Japanese had practiced their technique since 1937 against almost helpless China.

King's disclosure that the offensive was undertaken therefore with full realization that without the most extreme good fortune substantial losses would have to be reckoned with, in accord with recognized principles of "calculated risk" after Pearl Harbor and Bataan there will be no quibbling over the price of victory.

Kaiser Is Told To Submit Plans For 'Mars' Planes

But Shipbuilder Still Lacks Authorization To Build Them

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board tonight gave Henry J. Kaiser a letter authorizing the Pacific coast shipbuilder to submit a report showing engineering plans, facilities and materials to be used in building 500 "Mars"-type cargo planes.

If Kaiser's report shows that construction of the seventy-ton flying boats would not interfere with the combat plane program, Nelson said, it is "expected that a contract for the construction of the planes will be negotiated."

Not "Letter of Intent"

The letter was not a "letter of intent," which is a valid government commitment for the start of production. Friday Nelson said a letter of intent was being prepared, conditional upon Kaiser's ability to carry out the project without cutting into bomber or other warplane output.

The letter which actually was given Kaiser carried considerably less force, and it did not mention the navy as the agency for which the planes actually would be built, although this was the original program.

Doubt Kaiser's Ability

Official sources, although declining to be quoted by name, indicated that the navy had balked at the plan despite Nelson's approval. The navy's objections, a WPB spokesman indicated, were based on doubt of the California builder's ability to build the huge cargo planes in shipyards, as he proposes.

A second letter was issued to Kaiser, Nelson announced, authorizing the California to proceed with the design of a new-type 200-ton flying boat. To work on this problem with Kaiser, WPB will appoint a committee of experts from the aircraft industry.

Boys Ride Horses To Death in Game Near Frostburg

Authorities Say Gang of Youngsters Warned To Cease Practice

Playing cowboy seems to be a favorite pastime for a number of young boys (old enough to know better) in the vicinity of Frostburg, and their game realistically played, has resulted in the death of two horses.

According to county officials who asked that the boys not be identified by name, a number of youths between the ages of thirteen and seventeen have been taken into custody in recent weeks, because they have been catching and riding horses in pastures in and around Frostburg.

It seems the boys make halters and bridles of wire, rope, sticks or anything available and then several of them corner the horses, bridle them with the improvised harness and proceed to gallop around the pasture land, in typically Indian and bronco buster bare-backed style, until the horses are exhausted.

One youth has been apprehended several times and is now in custody of his parents. Several others have been warned to discontinue the practice and several others have been apprehended and released.

If the practice continues, serious charges will be placed against the boys, and sentences will be imposed. Officials express the view that if the boys have no respect for laws of trespass, they should at least be taught some consideration for the animals they abuse.

Three Permits for $350 Worth of Construction Work Are Issued Here

Three building permits for $350 worth of improvements were issued yesterday by the city engineer.

The Zion Reformed Church Cemetery obtained a permit for covering a house with composition brick effect siding at 624 Shade's lane, W. W. Markel is the contractor. The cost is estimated at $150.

A permit was issued to C. E. Jones for construction of a one-story concrete block chicken house on rear of lot at Winfield road. Harry Jordan is the contractor and the cost is $75.

Frank Roadcap obtained a permit to build a two-room frame house covered with imitation brick shingles and tarpaper roof off Willow Brook road. Cost is estimated at $125.

With Our Boys In the Service

Corp. William Frederick Hosey, son of Mrs. Leah R. Hosey, 14 Market street, is setting something of a record as a student in air corps cadet training school.

Hosey enlisted in the army about two years ago and selected the air corps as the branch in which he wished to serve. Prior to the declaration of war he was stationed in Panama but shortly after the war was declared he returned to this country for training as a pilot. He has attended Brayton Flying School at Cuero, Texas, Curtis Flying School, Brady, Texas and is now training at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas.

In a recent examination he completed all courses at the top of his class with a score averaging over ninety-five percent. Corp. Hosey will graduate with his class Sept. 6, after which he will be assigned as a transport pilot.

William Harvey, Headquarters Company, 2115 C street, N. W., Washington, D. C., has been promoted to staff sergeant.

James A. Burrell, Kitzmiller, was sent to the Baltimore induction station yesterday by the local navy recruiting station.

George Hamilton, stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va., and Wesley Hamilton, U. S. Navy, Brooklyn, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hamilton, Valley road.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher, Cresaptown, received word that their son, Private Ellis Fisher is stationed with the Technical Squadron Corps, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Aviation Cadet William H. Rankin, student bombardier of 120 Wabash avenue, Belleville, Ill., reported at the Air Force Advanced Flying School at Albuquerque, New Mexico, to complete the advanced phases of his course of training as an aerial bombardier. Cadet Rankin received his preliminary training at Ellington Field, Texas. He was appointed as cadet bombardier on March 26, at Scott Field, Ill. Rankin is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Rankin, 77 East Main street, Lonaconing. He is a graduate of Central Lonaconing High School and he attended Frostburg State Teachers College, one year.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Watson, Frostburg, received word that their son, Private Howard W. Watson, was transferred from Camp Young, India, Calif., to Leesville, La.

William Stair, son of Mrs. Helen Stair, Broadway, Frostburg, stationed at Camp Meade for seventeen months, had the distinction of being advanced three ranks during the past week. He was promoted from private first class to staff motor sergeant. He leaves Camp Meade today for Indian Town Gap, Pa. Sgt. Stair was home last week on a furlough.

Private Paul E. Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Price, Frostburg, has been transferred from Salt Lake City, Utah, to Muroc, Calif.

Five men joined the Army yesterday. They are Joseph Diehl, 1315 River avenue; Kenneth Walker, 118 Paca street; William E. Winters, 305 Paca street; Eugene D. Clay-ton, Ridgeley, W. Va., and Raymond D. Redman, Paw Paw, W. Va.

Gerald L. Barb, seaman second class, Company C, Platoon 1, U. S. Navy, stationed at San Francisco, returned after visiting his mother, Mrs. Hazel Barb at Rawlings, Md.

Edwin J. Rice, son of Mrs. Maude E. Rice, 636 Fairview avenue, has been promoted to corporal at Will Rogers Field, Okla., where he has been stationed since May 11.

Mrs. James G. Eatrides, 409 Maryland avenue, received word that her cousin, Sgt. Nick Kuris, Cincinnati, Ohio, arrived in Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Teeter, Baltimore Pike, with whom Private Carl Orndoff resided, have been notified of his arrival in Hawaii.

POLICE BOYS' CLUB WILL NAME ELIGIBLES FOR CENTRAL 'Y' CAMP

A meeting of the Cumberland Police Boys' Club will be held at the Constitution park swimming pool Thursday, August 13, at 10 a. m., at which time between forty and fifty members of the club will be selected to spend a week at the Central Y. M. C. A. camp, commencing next week.

The meeting originally was scheduled for tomorrow but was set back to Thursday because a number of the members are planning to attend the fair tomorrow, Cumberland Day.

Selection of the boys will be in charge of James J. Condon, James E. Kelley, Jr., and Phil Holshey, supervisor of Boys' club activities.

Draftee Borrows False Teeth To Get into Army

Secured Discarded Set of Plates from a Local Funeral Home

This is a story which is hard to believe but which has been confirmed through reliable sources.

Several weeks ago a man walked into Local Draft Board No. 2 offices to see the man in charge. P. Emmett Fahey, chief clerk, asked the man what he wanted.

"I want you to do me a favor," the man said. "I don't have any upper teeth and I want you to fix my papers so that the army doctors will accept me when I go to Baltimore for induction," he added.

Of course, Fahey had to tell him that was not possible under the regulations. The disappointed draftee then went to Staff Sgt. Biehn, army recruiter, and asked if he could enlist. After an examination Sgt. Biehn told the man he lacked the necessary teeth.

It later developed that the man went to a local funeral home and asked if they had any discarded dental plates. Puzzled by the request the funeral home director asked why he wanted the plates. After explaining the case an employee rummaged in the basement and found a small basket of dental plates.

The plates were thoroughly sterilized and the anxious draftee began trying the various upper plates for size. Finally he found what he wanted and left in a cheerful frame of mind. Well, to wind up the story, the man left with the contingent of draftees for Baltimore and whether he passed or not could not be learned late last night.

Mrs. Harry Irvine Is In Critical Condition After Suffering Stroke

Mrs. Sophie Irvine, widow of Harry Irvine, former mayor, suffered a paralytic stroke yesterday morning at 3 o'clock at her home, 300 Pulaski street, and was removed to the Allegany County Home and Infirmary, Valley road.

Mrs. Irvine failed to regain consciousness last evening and her condition is reported as critical.

Two years ago Mrs. Irvine suffered a stroke and was a patient in Memorial hospital from March to June, 1940.

Uruguay produces from 15 to 18 per cent of the world's meat exports.

Two Persons Suffer Injuries in Accidents

Two persons were treated yesterday in Memorial hospital dispensary for injuries received in accidents.

Mrs. Martha DeWitt, 34, of Friendsville, suffered a fractured left wrist when she fell in the kitchen at her home. After a splint was applied she was released.

Daily Lewis, 36, of Augusta, W. Va., suffered a severe laceration of the palm of his right hand yesterday at the Koppers Company the treating plant, Greenspring, W. Va. A tie which he was feeding into a planer "kicked back".

Miller Rites Held In Charles Town

Funeral services were held yesterday at the First Methodist church, Charles Town, W. Va., for William Shirley Miller, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Miller, who died suddenly Saturday afternoon during the second race at Fairgo. The child's father is a trainer for one of the stables whose horses are racing here this season.

The baby had been ill about five days and Saturday, was overcome by convulsions.

The body was taken early yesterday morning to the home of Mrs. Miller's father, Shirley Southard at Shenandoah Junction, W. Va. Services were held at the Methodist church and interment was in Edge Hill cemetery at Charles Town. The Rev. J. M. Dodge officiated.

Pallbearers were four little girls, Mildred N. Seal, Juanita Murphy, Enice Graves and Betty Jean Boyd, all of Charles Town.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Martha Wason, Plaintiff, vs. Roy H. Wason, Defendant.

No. 16708 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant a VINCULO MATRIMONII. The bill of complaint states the parties were married June 16th, 1924, at Hagerstown, Maryland; that one child was born of the marriage, namely, Betty M. Wason, now 16 years of age. That the defendant deserted the plaintiff on the 15th day of December, 1929, without just cause or reason, that such abandonment and desertion has continued uninterruptedly ever since said date, and the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable hope of expectation of reconciliation. The plaintiff desires the permanent custody and guardianship of the infant child, said plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland, and has been all her life, while the defendant, Roy H. Wason, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and his address is unknown to the plaintiff.

It is thereupon ordered this 1st day of August, 1942, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 3rd day of September, 1942, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 19th day of September, 1942, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

Some Reckless Reckoning

THE WORKING of the famine mind has, through the ages, been a strange and curious phenomenon. To the mere male, whose convictions are not ordinarily turned with haste, it has been something inexplicable because the woman can and does change her mind at the drop of a hat—snap!—just like that. For this reason, the men have gallantly conceded her that privilege as in the nature of a peculiar biological right and let things go as they might.

Take the case of Mrs. Katherine E. Byron, the Sixth district representative in Congress, for example. In withdrawing suddenly and unexpectedly from the race for Democratic renomination, she has run true to the feminine tradition.

Only two days before her withdrawal, which came shortly before the time limit for it had expired, Representative Byron was not only in the race with a vim but in it to stay "to the finish." Production of the war was advanced as her motivation which, it will be recalled, led her to another reversal of mind when she decided right off the handle and before consulting with any of the political powers that be that she would be a candidate for renomination.

But it logically should have been expected that she reserved her right to change her mind, although there was little hint of that this time inasmuch as she gave rather emphatic indication that she didn't intend to do so. However, she suddenly came to a realization that there would be a tough fight for her in the primary with the adroit and unctuous politician of Montgomery county, E. Brooke Lee, as her opponent, and also that her five sons needed her care. So out she went—click! clack!—just like that.

Just what happened in the two-day interim, nobody seems to know. Perhaps there was some sort of impressive persuader in a political way. Perhaps, after all, as has so often happened, it was just a case of a woman's exercising her royal prerogative of changing her mind.

Anyway, behind the scenes one can detect some frantic maneuvering on the part of the Democratic powers that be. They probably figured it out that Mrs. Byron's sticking in the race would complicate matters on the Democratic side considerably.

Lee has been unusually active in his county and, quite naturally, being the smooth kind of politician he is, has made a considerable number of political enemies. In fact, the Democrats of his county have for some time been engaged in a bitter factional fight, in which Lee opponents seized the occasion to advocate adoption of a county reorganization scheme based upon a Brookings Institute survey with the twofold purpose of correcting numerous deficiencies in county management and shouldering Mr. Lee outward. Some have believed that the latter was the more important consideration.

Wherefore, it was probably thought to be cute politics to avoid any excuse for continuation of that fight, have the field clear for the congressional nomination and let the burden and possible clashing of a primary fight rest on the Republican side.

But, that being the case, the Democratic big-wigs have reckoned without some rather hard facts.

One of these is that the simple withdrawal of Mrs. Byron will not automatically cure the factional fighting that has been going on for so long a time between the Lee and anti-Lee forces in Montgomery county. Indeed, it is likely to continue with increased bitterness with the result that many of the dissatisfied anti-Lee Democrats will seize the opportunity of taking a crack at him when he faces a Republican nominee at the election polls.

The other fact is that expectation of a hurtful primary fight on the Republican side is entirely illusory. There just "ain't going to be any such animal." While this newspaper hopes and believes that J. Glenn Beall, of this county, will win the primary contest, his opponent, H. C. Triesler, of Hagerstown, having remained in the race, will be accorded his due chance to garner the votes in the orderly operation of our republican form of government; and, so far as Mr. Beall and his supporters are concerned, there have come like assurances from Mr. Triesler and his supporters, their race will be conducted in a fair, decent, gentlemanly and sportsmanlike manner, with the winner commanding the respect and the united support of all Republicans of the district.

So, all in all, it looks as if the Democratic politicians have been led astray by a lot of wishful thinking and have reckoned somewhat recklessly. At any rate, as Uncle Bub is wont to say, we shall see what we shall see.

Those amateur weather prophets must have a tough time of it keeping their big jaws secret for the duration.

This Just Repealer Has Little Chance

STRONG PUBLIC RESENTMENT over a provision in the service men's family dependence bill that withholds payments to dependents until November 1, a few days before election, has inspired a move in Congress to revise the law to provide for immediate payments.

The allotments are now being withheld from the pay of service men, but the money is not going to their dependents. The inference is that vote-conscious politicians wanted a flood of this money poured over the country just prior to election in order to establish the appearance of another big handout from Santa Claus.

Senator Vandenberg has drafted the revision. It would repeal the provision that "any allowances which accrue under this title for the period preceding November 1, 1942, shall not be actually paid until after November 1, 1942."

Apparently this is another case in which the members trusted a committee to write a fair law, and the committee could not resist the temptation to sneak a piece of political trickery into the bill, regardless of the hardship that it would impose on the families of men who are risking their lives for their country.

In all fairness, the repealer should be put through. But the difficulty now is that Congress will be in recess virtually all the time in which the relief should be provided, the members having left their posts of duty and scamped back home to look after their political fences.

Bananas Needed For Celiac Cases

WHO would have thought back in the nineteen twenties that the ballad then popular, "Yes, We Have No Bananas," would come true is dead earnest? The banana has for years been as popular as it was common, but of late years nutrition experts have found that it is also a valuable food, particularly under certain conditions.

These have recently been almost tragically illustrated in New York city, Baltimore and a few other places where mothers of infants suffering from an intestinal ailment known as celiac combed the markets in a vain search for bananas. They had been prescribed by physicians as an indispensable item for the diet of the children, whose systems were unable to use either fats or carbohydrates. Bananas in most cases of celiac effect a cure within one to three years without leaving the dreaded after-effects of malnutrition.

These incidents have served to bring to light a situation which is serious for people suffering from various ailments of the digestive tract. The United Fruit Company has announced that it will make every effort to supply bananas for celiac cases. Priority shipments will be made for the patients. If necessary, banana powder can be used to tide a sufferer over a brief banana famine.

Some gay youngsters may have to do without their banana splits, and other persons may be compelled to concentrate on citrus fruits, but this is an inconsequential inconvenience if infants can be saved from one of the strange diseases of childhood.

How time flies! It was just five short years ago that our biggest worry was over what the dust storms might do to civilization.

The other World War started twenty-eight years ago, or was it the beginning of this one?

It will be interesting to observe Argentina's antics when Hitler begins to lose.

I Believe in Heredity

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I believe in Heredity. I believe in that intangible, invisible, indestructible force that comes down through the ages—and that passes from generation to generation when babies are born.

I do not understand it but I believe in it. Once I didn't. Once I believed that environment—the thing that happens to people AFTER they are born—was more important than all that had gone before. I had read a book and I had believed it. . . . I was a fanatic. I argued at the drop of a hat that environment is much more important and far more useful, than heredity in the shaping of boys and girls into useful men and women. I was a bore.

Perhaps I convinced a few people. But I know one human being whom I failed to convince. I wanted to convince him less than anyone else. I wanted HIM to believe that we stand alone here on this wild earth and can make ANYTHING of ourselves—and that we owe little to all those men and women who have gone before. And that stubborn person who would not be convinced was myself. . . . Although I argued and argued, he would not agree. He was stubborn, and at last he won. Finally, he convinced that other Me.

And now I believe in Heredity more than I do in Environment—and that's sort of funny because it's what most sensible persons have always believed. . . . I changed my mind through watching two sisters I know very well.

They are unlike each other now; they have always been different. They have lived very differently. Their educational years were different, their lives since school have been different. All has been different—apparently—and looking at them and thinking about them, you would say: "These sisters are not at all alike."

But they ARE alike. At important moments, in serious crises, they act alike. They are moved in the same way, they weep for the same causes, are angered for the same reasons. Without consultation they arrive at the same ends. . . . You see they had the same parents and when they are in trouble they go back to that something that came with them out of the dark past. Something in their heredity guides them.

I have to come to believe that heredity guides all men, all women, and that it is a silent strength within all of us that we should trust more than we do. Our lives may hurt it, deform it, bend it almost to breaking—but it is always there. Give it half a chance and all the courage and wisdom of the ages will come forth in their stumbling children of today.

Equal Protection For White-Collar Workers Is Urged

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—"Union security" and maintenance of membership in labor unions now has become a fixed policy—not through any act of Congress but through the decree of the president who created the War Labor Board and by inference approves of all of its major decisions.

The board has, in effect, decided that because union labor promised to give up its right to strike and interrupt production in wartime, compensation must be paid for that which hitherto was a matter of voluntary patriotism.

The president is acquiescing in this new form of compulsory unionization and allowing the war effort to be used for labor unions to accrue an advantage valuable to them after the war is over.

Far from opposing the president's policy of giving an extraordinary special privilege to one class of citizens, there are some in the ranks of business who think that perhaps employers ought not to fight this special privilege but merely to ask for the extension of that same privilege to their own affairs.

The latest suggestion is that governmental agencies shall sanction a sort of maintenance-of-customers system whereby businesses that now give up their plants to war work shall not lose their customers after the war to any unforeseen competitors.

Idea Championed

The theory of the maintenance of membership in labor unions is that, having given up the right to strike, an important weapon for coercing men into labor unions or for making them stay in such unions and pay dues may be lost. The War Labor Board boldly champions the idea that labor union memberships must not be permitted to disintegrate during the war or to be captured by a competing union.

Now the labor union membership business is a tremendous affair running into hundreds of millions of dollars a year and with salaries for labor union executives ranging up to $25,000 a year in some instances. It is important for these salaries to have their incomes protected.

But, on the other hand, it is important for many businesses engaged in war production to have their security assured too. Thus, when a plant is compelled by government decree not to manufacture any more goods for civilian use, such a business loses overnight all its customers. The relations with customers which have been built up over a period of years at large cost suddenly break down and disintegrate. Many businesses are given over wholly to war production with Uncle Sam as their single customer and by the same token many new producers are brought into the field who will smash enough capital subsequently to enter into vigorous competition with the original producers.

No Protection Given

The government does nothing to protect these old customer relationships nor to safeguard the old producer against new competition. One way, analogous to that of the War Labor Board scheme, would be for some governmental agency to insist that all customers of these existing producers must remain customers after the war. This would be a difficult thing to enforce. Perhaps a better way would be for to refrain from putting an obstacle in the way of manufacturers who want to spend money to maintain contact with future customers.

Thus the government in negotiating war contracts does not allow a single cent to be included as overhead costs if these relate to the maintenance of customer relationships for commercial sales purposes in after-the-war markets. The selling organizations of most large companies engaged in war work have been disbanded or materially curtailed and there are probably more salesmen walking the streets trying to find work to do than in the depression days of 1932.

Forbidden by Government

Many of them are too old or not physically qualified for military service. Here is a white collar class of men who work with their heads instead of their hands and yet the government, through the regulations of the war and navy departments, actually forbids companies from including in their business costs in figuring war contracts any money spent to maintain sales organizations for future selling.

The administration, having committed itself to a maintenance of membership in labor unions, might well consider sanctioning maintenance-of-customer relationships so as to protect not only the white collar class of workers who have given up their jobs but the managers of small businesses who have given up their right to produce or manufacture as they please.

Too Much, Even, For Fiorello

From the Pittsburgh Press

"We've heard all these youngsters, and they just don't know," said Mayor LaGuardia, testifying on the tax bill before the Senate Finance committee.

Maybe the Little Flower has dropped a petal on a point. For the experts on the Treasury staff appearing as advisers to the committee are almost invariably young—very young. There seems to be a veritable youth administration in the department.

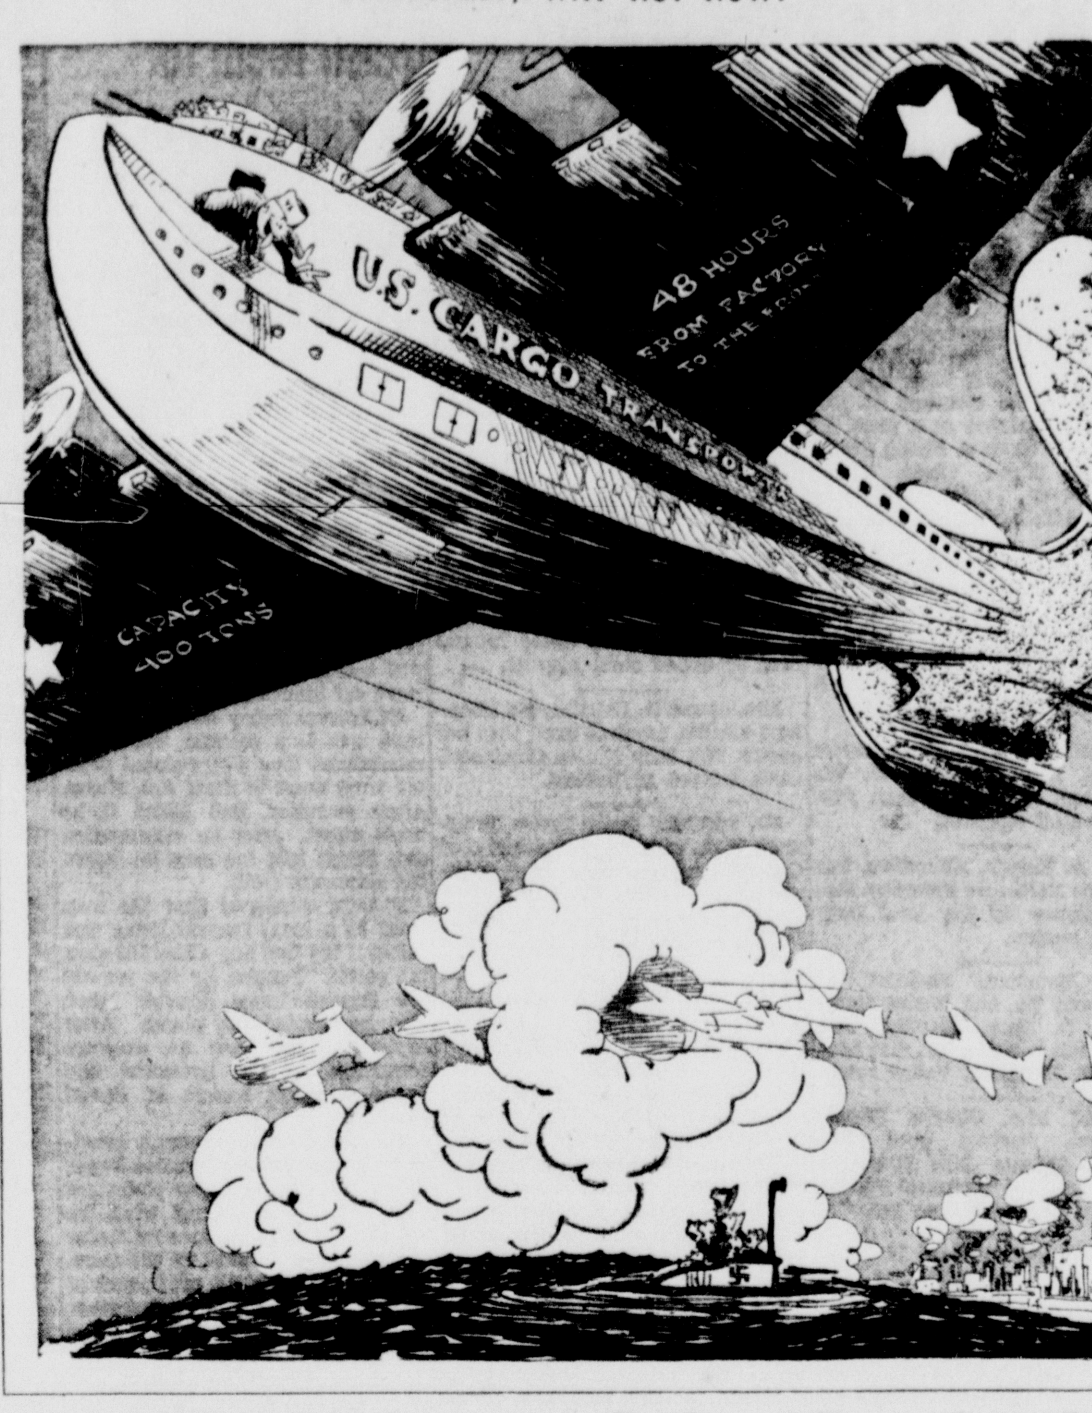

Sitting at the raised desks above and around the experts are the elder statesmen, and graying Connallys and Vandenberg, Georges, Tafts, et al. The visitor gets the impression, however, that the older men are not actually running the show, or at least only in part. The senators don't have all the answers, hot off the hip, like the youngsters—that being characteristic both of age and of youth.

The cocksureness of many of the replies on as complicated questions as ever faced lawmakers gives occasion to shivers to the citizen and taxpayer who listens to the show. For the taxpayer is the guinea pig in this high-ceilinged, bepaned, expensive and air-conditioned laboratory. It seems a cinch that none of Henry Morgenthau's scots ever has seen, let alone met, a payroll.

While there is nothing against youth as such, a bit of weaning and of seasoning is called for when it comes to rising and handling billions of taxpayer money.

Anyway, when it gets too much for the Flaming Fiorello it must be something.

EVENTUALLY, WHY NOT NOW?

Baruch Appointment Is Seen Beneficial In Fighting All Shortages and Inflation

By MARK SULLIVAN

The appointment of Mr. Bernard Baruch as head of the committee to decide about rubber, has public importance beyond the particular field in which Mr. Baruch is now to function.

In the aspects of the conduct of this war, outside of military strategy, Mr. Baruch is the best equipped man of his generation. Quite possibly as the war goes on younger men will emerge, as well equipped to cope with the new conditions attending the present war, not included in Mr. Baruch's experience. Doubtless we shall develop, for the conditions of 1942 and the future, new and younger Baruchs. We shall be fortunate when we do.

Generally, Mr. Baruch's qualifications rest on native qualities of his personality. Specifically, he has had experience not during the Great War, he is head of the War Industries Board, had personal responsibility for procurement of supplies—and that includes almost everything in war except military strategy and the direction of combat. (Food and shipping were under other men, with whom Baruch, as part of his ability, was able to cooperate.)

In that war, President Wilson conducted the statesmanship—that is what he did best, and liked most. As part of the statesmanship, Wilson conducted most of the diplomacy—because his secretary of state part of the time, William Jennings Bryan, was among other shortcomings for that post at that time, a pacifist who did not really believe in the war. Wilson, busy with his own functions and happy in them, was pleased to leave the other aspects of the war to other officials. Military matters he left to the secretary of war, Newton D. Baker, and Baker had the wisdom to leave them mainly to the professional military men.

The field of procurement of supplies, Wilson left to Mr. Baruch; Wilson liked and trusted him, and Baruch lived up to the trust. Every body knew the relation between Wilson and Baruch, knew there was no inner circle around Wilson that left Baruch outside. They knew that Wilson, sound in principles of administration, when he found a good man for the post, gave the man utterly complete authority. Baruch had command, and equally important, was known to have it. He, with an extraordinary group of subordinates, conducted that part of the war which consisted of turning the industrial resources of the country into an immense mechanism for producing the supplies of war in the right quantities and proportions.

Foresight Backed by Experience

From his experience, Baruch learned a lesson that only a few have the opportunity to acquire, and the vision to see. He foresaw that in any future war, procurement of supplies would play an even larger part than in the Great War. He foresaw indeed that any future war would be in large part a conflict between the industrial resources of the combatants—the metals, chemicals, and fabricating processes on one side, pitted against those on the other.

Knowing this, Mr. Baruch, for the past twenty years and increasingly lately, has had an intense concern that his country be equipped for the aspect of war that he was familiar with, and which he knew to be fundamental. Constantly, in personal relations with military and naval officers, in conferences with them, in letters addressed to them, in contacts with the War college and with members and committees of Congress and Administration officials—constantly Mr. Baruch stressed the necessity of adequate supplies of raw materials. Constantly he was warning, leading, giving practical guidance. From his own experience he knew to the last the ordinary raw materials of which America has plenty.

Even better, because it was more vital, he knew the raw materials that America lacks, and would desperately need if war came—rubber, tin, some other metals. Constantly he pleaded and prodded that we acquire stores of them—the word "stock-pile" became familiar largely through Mr. Baruch.

Tragic Blunder

When the war broke, there was not a sufficient stock-pile of rubber. That was a tragic lack. As a blunder of negligence, it was equivalent to Pearl Harbor. How and why it happened, need not be discussed here.

Mr. Baruch did not repine or reproach. His "wisdom and serenity knew that 'too little and too late' is not a mere epigram coined by Lloyd George—it is a law of human nature, and especially a trait of democracies. Democracies will not expect disaster, nor prepare for it, until they see the actual brink. Mr. Baruch will now proceed patiently to repair the lack that was caused by failure to regard his warnings.

The rubber job will not take much time. In another field there is another mistake incubating. Inflation is not being prevented, cost of living is not being held down. Mr. Baruch, from his experience in the Great War, can tell them how.

Line Drawn For Others

From the Christian Science Monitor

Those plotters against a wholehearted, united American war effort who have been hiding themselves in the legal fringes of constitutional guarantees of freedom of press and speech have been dealt a punishing blow in the conviction of William Dudley Pelley on eleven counts of criminal sedition and conspiracy. A jury of Americans and Judge Robert C. Baltzell in the Indianapolis federal district court have sharply delineated the line between free and proper criticism that seeks a constructive end and the harmful mutterings of defeatism and carping disunity that serve the foe.

The legal precedents established in the Pelley case—which may be reviewed by the supreme court on appeal—go beyond the former head of the Silver Shirts and editor of The Galilean. They draw the line for others who harbor the same disrupting aims. They show the law able to protect as well as proclaim freedom.

Implemented by this decision, authorities should accelerate their snuffing out of existing embers of this enemy flame. Conditions have improved immeasurably since last March when The Christian Science Monitor called public attention to the large number openly doing the work of the Axis while claiming protection from the constitution they were striving to destroy.

Independence Idea Of Indian Leaders Is Deemed Suicidal

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Racial feeling—an always bitter, stupid, suicidal guide for political action—seems now to have emerged as a root cause of the unintelligible positions of the Indian politicians. Both Nehru and Gandhi have rather openly suggested this in their recent statements.

American observers, returning from India recently, have complained they could not understand the insensibility of Nehru and Gandhi for the cause of world freedom when they wanted their own.

Independence for India is possible, only if the Anglo-American world cause wins. Otherwise, such a defenseless nation would naturally pass under the dominance of its nearest Axis neighbor, in this case Japan.

Obviously then, some inspiration, other than a desire for freedom, must have made the Indian leaders reject the full promises of independence from the British in favor of a policy which would bring them under Japanese control, if fulfilled.

Inspiration Shown

The statements of Nehru and Gandhi finally complaining against racial discrimination, show what that inspiration was.

For a parallel you must recall British experience in adjoining Burma. There many Burmese foolishly choose to fight with the yellow hordes from Japan and delivered themselves enthusiastically into the Nipponese noose. Such a course, frenzied in its hatred, naturally does not make sense from any standpoint.

This is not a racial war. China and Filipinos are on our side, or rather we are on theirs. The Indian politicians, and the Burmese, will realize their mistake when we win this war, although it may be late then.

Meanwhile, it makes the Indian situation dangerous.

As to Lindbergh

A critical reader has challenged my inclusion of Lindbergh, along with Doolittle and Admiral Byrd, as types of cool men of scientific action needed in the forefront of our war effort.

"I can go along with your mention of Doolittle and possibly Byrd, but Lindbergh is a great disappointment to most Americans and has done more to create discussion than most people," he writes.

Lindbergh is one of the worst politicians who ever floated a political blimp—and one of the greatest aviation technicians this nation has produced. Like most other men who are great on one subject, he is truly a disappointment outside his field.

Politicians Not Needed

But we do not need politicians to win this war. That is one class for which no manpower draft is necessary, and one in which our prevailing surplus obviates the necessities of priorities.

I would not care what Lindbergh's beliefs were before the war, if he could help win it. I would put him where he could do the most damage to Hitler and the Japs.

But, incidentally, I did not say Lindbergh as a person was indispensable to our war effort. I said we should get all the men of such a type who can do things, the men who think ahead of the crowd in their field, the ingenious, alert and daring technicians on the army and navy reserve lists or on the sidelines in the business fields for political reasons or others—let pre-war byones be byones—and put these men into positions where their special aptitudes can be used to the utmost to win this war.

Better Bookkeeping Needed

The army and navy have informed Congress it should not pass the Rankin bill allowing dependents of fighting men to get their living allowance (due since June 1) now instead of November 1, the day before the congressional election. Bookkeeping is holding them up and if payments were made as cases are completed, overseas men would be discriminated against, they said.

This twaddle-dum informs twaddle-dee they were both right in the first place—that the day before the election is the only time to pay in one lump the five months arrears due all wives and children of service men. They plead "discrimination" and "bookkeeping" for failing to provide authorized food for persons presumed to need it—for five months, thus indicating they need some new bookkeepers.

May Hit Voting

I have a feeling that if August 15 happened to be election day, the War department, Navy and Congress would suddenly start thinking about how these wives and children are going to live without the living allowances now overdue. In that case, I suspect the bookkeeping would be done faster.

If it is not done faster and the payment date of November 1 is kept, a lot of hungry wives and irate soldiers and sailors will have no reason to feel grateful to congressmen for having provided the allowance—at least not grateful enough to vote for their re-election.

Trusted Person Helps To Allay Child's Fright

Fear, Like Courage, Is Contagious, Dr. Garry Myers Says

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

In the following letter we see how fear, like courage, is contagious. Also we see how the presence of some trusted person helps allay a child's fright.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—We are a family of five. Mother, father, a girl ten, a boy six and one five. The six-year-old boy has a very strong fear of lightning and thunder. If his father or I am with him, he soon quiets down. But, if alone, or with the younger boy, he'll scream and cry and seem terrified.

"My husband was frightened by a thunderstorm when he was three years old. He still carries that fear of storms. My youngest watches his father and senses his fear too. drive a wedge from the Black Sea

To Help Him Face It

"What can we do about this to help him? I don't baby him but at the same time I don't ignore his fear if it is so real. I try to comfort him and strengthen his will to face it. I have no fear of storms and when he is with me alone he is much more clam and unafraid. He is sturdy, strong, courageous and daring in every other way. Please advise me. I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it."

In answering this mother I urged her to continue her kind, sympathetic manner toward that boy's fears and also to try to help the father reduce his own fear of thunderstorms. Needless to say the father's fear inspires fright in the child.

I suggested to the mother she prevail on the father to wear rubbers, avoid going near a tree or chimney or standing in a draft, during an electric storm; that, moreover, she induce him and the children to sit with her watching a receding storm, observing the waning distant lightning flashes and thunder peals. Since she is so calm herself she might well tell some jokes or relate some interesting personal experiences during the worst of the storm, in order to divert the attention of the father and the timid child, or get them to play a game. Never Laugh at Him We should not laugh at a child or adult suffering from fear but take it as a matter of course and divert his attention when we can. Anyway, the fear of being laughed at is about the worst and most persistent of all fears. When we laugh at some one who is frightened we show that we lack understanding, sympathy and consideration for him as a personality.

Fears do so much to rob a person of feeling at ease and having a happy, likable personality. We parents should do our best to prevent and control fears in ourselves and our children.

Stars Are 'Coined' For the General

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA (A)—When an American colonel at a remote operation base was promoted recently to brigadier-general, the troops he commanded learned that he was unable to obtain a general's stars for his uniform.

One of his gunners a former New Hampshire silversmith, obtained the size and specifications of the stars from an army manual. Then took two Australian florins—silver coins about the size of a 50-cent piece, worth 33 cents each—and set to work with a hammer.

Now the general wears a shiny star on each shoulder—with the Australian coat-of-arms on the reverse side.

Normally, more than half the sugar produced in Australia is exported.

After the war you, too, can enjoy economical gas heat . . . if you don't have it now!

Regardless of what fuel you now use, the reduction in heat losses . . . through insulation, storm windows and doors and weatherstripping . . . can give you substantial savings YET AFTER THE WAR! And while you can't get gas central heating now if you don't already have it—when the war is over and gas is again available for heating—your home will be ideally suited for clean, modern, automatic gas heat at rock-bottom cost.

Cut your heating costs

3 ways

to reduce the cost of fuel next winter and help the war effort

1. Install storm windows and doors 2. Insulate your home against heat losses 3. Weatherstrip your windows and doors

Insulation can pay dividends indefinitely if it is done properly. Conservatively, insulation of roof alone can save from 15 to 25 per cent, and insulated side-walls will increase this saving by perhaps 13 per cent. Storm windows and doors, creating air cushions, will hold more even temperatures throughout your home and cut heat losses through these apertures by 50 per cent, or possibly an additional 11 or 18 per cent of your total bill. Weatherstripping can help, too. And any one of these will help to make an undersized heating plant maintain even temperatures at lower cost. See your contractor or dealer today.

ACT NOW . . . While There's Ample Time!
Investigate new easy payment plan!

What you can reasonably expect to save

Insulation—From 15% to 25%, often more.
Storm windows and doors—From 11% to 18%, or more.
Weatherstripping—Up to 15%.

Not only that, but insulation can give protection against fires by reducing drafts, also being fire resistant. It can also help to make usable some hard-to-heat room. Storm windows and doors minimize outside noise, help keep your home cleaner, eliminate sweating of windows.

Natural Gas is vital to war industries . . . Use it wisely!

Hotels Filled For Convention

Legion Now Seeks Rooms in Private Homes for Big Department Event

Requests for reservations for the Maryland Department American Legion convention, scheduled here August 26 to 29, inclusive, have been so numerous that all available hotel rooms have been filled and now efforts are being made to find additional space in private homes.

The housing committee, headed by Robert C. Bowers, received requests for sixty-four reservations yesterday, and now Bowers is wondering where he's going to put 'em.

"Here's a good one," remarked Bowers as he read a telegram from an out-of-town legionnaire who asked for five double rooms. "Wonder where he's been?"

Adding to the trials and tribulations of the housing chairman was another message which requested reservation of a cottage along a good fishing stream within fifteen miles of Cumberland and a row boat.

Reservations are also coming in at a lively rate for the banquet at the Queen City hotel on Thursday, August 27. One hundred of the five hundred tickets are reserved for distinguished guests. It's a catch-as-catch-can affair as far as the 400 others are concerned," remarked John R. Kelly, chairman.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

WINTER STORAGE OF BEETS

To hasten the maturing of the late planting of beets, begin to thin the seedlings when they are two inches high. Always choose dull damp weather for this operation.

Beets should be lifted for storage before sharp frosts occur. This operation should be done very carefully.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, after lifting the beets, the leaves should be twisted off—not cut off—two or three inches beyond the crown. Then they can be stored in sand and kept in the cellar until required for use.

Frostburg Council Orders 6 Items In Auditor's Report Investigated

City Attorney Authorized To Make Investigation; No Charges Are Made

FROSTBURG, Aug. 10.—William S. Jenkins city attorney, was instructed by the mayor and council of Frostburg at a special meeting last evening to investigate six items contained in the report of Charles O. Hall, certified public accountant, who conducted a special audit of the city's books for the past three years.

In making the request, the mayor and council stated that no charges were being placed against anyone but the items were not clear and the council was seeking an explanation of the transactions.

First of the six items ordered investigated concerned a sum of $200 paid the Tri-State Mill, Mine and Supply company, by Roland A. Lammert, former city clerk. The money according to the auditor's report was given to Lammert by William H. Lemmert, present mayor of the city, while he was serving as commissioner of water in 1940.

Several Entries Not Clear

The report questions the entry of the payment on the company's books, which was made August 21, 1940. The report shows that the sum was in payment for water meters purchased by the city for out-of-town consumers.

The second item questioned by the report is the sum of $115.32 allegedly paid to Former City Clerk Lammert by Mrs. Jesse Jacobs, wife of Councilman Jesse Jacobs, present commissioner of streets and water.

Hall in his report, stated that no entry was made on the city's books for the amount which was paid for "several items."

The third item which Jenkins was ordered to investigate was an entry on the city's books for $437.50. The report stated that the sum had been paid Lammert in addition to his salary over a period of three years without approval of the mayor and city council.

According to the report Lammert received an additional $125 in 1939, $187.50 in 1940 and $125 in 1941. The statement showed that the sums were paid in addition to Lammert's annual salary of $1,500.

The council ordered Jenkins to investigate the payments since the minutes of council meetings did not authorize the additional payments.

Commission Questioned

The fourth item questioned by Hall's report was a sum of $223.70 paid former Clerk Lammert as a commission for collecting paving liens when the city did not authorize the commission.

The report also asked for an explanation of the entry in the city's books for $163.12 paid to former City Tax Collector Calvin A. Holben on taxes which, according to the report, were paid directly to the city.

The report alleges that Holben received commissions on taxes amounting to $5,437.47 paid to the city by the State of Maryland and Allegany county without authority of the mayor and city council.

The payments questioned by the report include the bank statement tax of $126.02, the state income tax of $725.20, revenues from the state liquor licenses amounting to $1,926.25, the Allegany county appropriation of $2,660. The report states that Holben received a commission of three per cent on the collections without authority of the mayor and city council.

The last of the items questioned by the statement involved Lammert's failure to file bond for the amount of $2,000 as required by an order passed by the mayor and city council in a resolution passed January 6, 1941.

City Attorney Jenkins stated that while the city probably has lost no money by reason of the former clerk's failure to post a bond he was ignoring the request of the mayor and council.

Jenkins Will Make Report

Following the investigation of the report by the mayor and council, which required about two weeks, the body last night unanimously voted to have Jenkins, as city attorney, investigate the six items questioned by the statement and make his report at the next council meeting.

The report as submitted by Hall consisted of sixteen type written pages, nine exhibits and five schedules relating to the city departments.

In addition to a report of his findings in the three year audit, Hall condemned the city's system of bookkeeping and recommended an immediate change.

He stated that the city has lost approximately $15,000 annually for the past three years in the water department because of the department's inability to meet expenditures with the present income.

Would Raise Water Rent

"If the city is to overcome this loss, the report stated, immediate action must be taken to raise the rate on water consumed by persons who receive their water through the water meters and a higher minimum rate must be set for all flat rate consumers."

Mayor Lemmert, who until the municipal election of last May served as commissioner of streets and water, stated that the Water department's financial difficulty may prove hard to overcome since most of the large water consumers of the community are charged on a flat rate.

Following the public airing of Hall's report the mayor and council appointed Fred W. Bottener, to succeed the Rev. W. D. Reese as a third member of the municipal Civil Service board. The Rev. Mr. Reese resigned recently because of ill health.

Registrants Are Warned To Report
Address ChangesMany Questionnaires Are Being Returned by Post Office, Chairman Says

FROSTBURG, Aug. 10 — Robert Glenn, chairman of Draft Board No. 4, this city, reported today that a large number of registrants with the local board are failing to notify the board of their change of address, which is contrary to instructions given them on their notification cards.

He stated that about fifty occupational questionnaires of the first and second registration have been returned to the board by the post office, because the registrant had changed his address and could not be located.

The responsibility of keeping the board informed of his whereabouts is the registrant's, Glenn stated, and those who have moved to a new address are warned to notify the board. The names of those who fail to comply with the regulations, he added, will be placed in the hands of the Department of Justice.

Price Changes Few in Extremely Dull Session of Stock Market

War News Fails To Disturb Trends; Liquor Shares Advance

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—The war news, while remaining as a stock market buying brake, failed to disturb general trends today and price changes, on the whole, held to an extremely narrow area.

The list was ragged from the start and mildly irregular tendencies prevailed as the close of one of the slowest sessions in two years. Liquor stocks edged up in the last few minutes of the proceedings, with Schenley, National Distillers and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams touching new highs for the year. Other specialties attracted support for modest advances. Among these were American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines.

Transfers of 309,941 shares compared with 212,250 in the preceding five-hour stretch.

Pullman was one of the best performers, gaining 1½ on an exceptionally good earnings statement. Moderate gains included U. S. Steel, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Ohio Oil (also responding to an optimistic profits summary), Kennecott, Consolidated Edison, Woolworth, Westinghouse, Canadian Pacific, General Electric and American Viscose.

On the losing end were Republic Steel, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Standard Oil (N. J.), Montgomery Ward, Boeing, du Pont and Detroit Edison. Goodyear was off ½ when directors voted a 25-cent dividend on the common against 37½ cents declared in June.

Tilting forward in the Curb were Brewster Auto, American Cyanamid, American Gas, Pennroad and Pennsylvania Salt. The aggregate here was 42,205 shares versus 40,070 last Friday.

Bond market prices drifted irregularly lower as buying interest waned in almost all groups except rails and was highly selective in that department.

Trading dried up to $3,734,000, par value, the smallest since July 20. This compared with $4,434,400 last Friday.

U. S. Governments were steady but reflected general neglect.

Theaters Today

Comedy Requires 3 Camera Crews

Two and sometimes three camera crews instead of the usual one were used to photograph Abbott and Costello during the making of "Pardon My Sarong" their newest Universal Comedy now at the Liberty theater.

The extra cameras were employed to save money and time. One camera was placed to get long shots, another to get close-ups of Abbott and the third to get close up of Costello.

In this way Director Eric C. Kenton had a scene securely "wrapped up" once it was done to his satisfaction, and the cast could proceed to the next sequence without the tiresome detail of re-photographing the scene from different angles.

The comedians in "Pardon My Sarong" have a wealth of talent in support, including Virginia Bruce, Robert Paige, Leif Erickson, Lionel Atwill, Nan Wynn, Samuel S. Hinds, Tip, Tap and Toe dancers, and The Four Ink Spots.

Lamarr and Powell Co-Star in Mystery

William Powell returns to familiar ground in M G-M's "Crossroads," a story of blackmail and intrigue which opens tomorrow at the Maryland theater. Long absent from serious dramatic roles, Powell is afforded an excellent opportunity in the film and makes the most of it. Hedy Lamarr is teamed with Powell for the first time, while Claire Trevor and Basil Rathbone lead one of the year's outstanding supporting casts.

The action of the story takes place in Paris before the current war.

Powell is a French diplomat happily married to Miss Lamarr. Just as he is made Ambassador to Brazil, an insidious blackmail plot is concocted against him by Rathbone and Miss Trevor. They present proof that he is living under a false identity and is really a petty criminal who robbed and murdered a man fifteen years before. The situation of a man's past catching up with him to destroy all he holds dear is believably and most thrillingly presented thanks to the expert direction of Jack Conway.

NEW ROMANTIC TEAM

A director's dream comes true when William Powell and Hedy Lamarr go into a clinch. That's exactly what they do in "Crossroads," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer thriller which brings the two stars to the screen as a new romantic team. Above, Hedy and Bill get into the mood for a big love scene. The film begins tomorrow at the Maryland theater.

ducer William Perleberg during the filming of "The Magnificent Dope," the Twentieth-Century-Fox farce now at the Strand theater gave men—for the first time—an equal voice with women in the choice of cinema millinery.

Lynn Bari's hat in the picture elicited admiring purrs from the women on the set. But the men, including Henry Fonda and Don Ameche who are co-starred with her, had their doubts about it to put it mildly.

Producer Perleberg settled the matter by stating that the man's view is much more important!

Gabor, Philip Merivale and Louis Jean Heydt.

Most of the "Pacific Blackout" action takes place during a mock air raid and practice blackout in an American city. Loaded with comedy, the picture is a blend of fun, thrills and suspense. Ralph Murphy directed.

Bean Balls To Cost National Managers $200

Club Heads Will Be Accountable For Pitchers

Frick Issues Edict To Curb 'Dusting Practice' in National League

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—National League pitchers who feel the urge to throw bean balls in the future may do so—if their managers are willing to put out $200.

Seeking to curb a "dusting" practice which threatened to reach epidemic proportions, League President Ford C. Frick today notified each manager that he would be subject to automatic fines of $200 where his pitchers were involved. The edict came as an aftermath of the Brooklyn Dodgers-Boston Braves game at Boston last Saturday in which Whit Wyatt of the Dodgers and Manuel Salvo of the Boston club engaged in a dusting duel. Wyatt was fined $75 for his part in the affair, and Salvo $50. Wyatt's performance included throwing a bat in Salvo's direction after he had been forced to the dirt by one of Salvo's pitches.

Pitchers Also To Be Fined
Frick also said that, in addition to the fines tacked on managers in cases involving their pitchers in the future, the pitchers would be fined, with the amount determined through the umpires' report.

Rumblings of bean ball trouble have been heard periodically this season in the National League, with most instances involving the Dodgers. However, no direct action has been taken before. Only one fine was levied after a game involving such charges, and that fine did not involve an attempted dusting.

In the last Dodgers series in Chicago the Dodgers charged that the Cub hurler, Hiram Bithorn, was using the bean ball. Bithorn was fined $25, but the fine was for throwing the ball at the heckling Leo Durocher, Dodger manager. Cub charged Kirby Higbe, Dodger pitcher, with dusting tactics in the same game.

Must Be Stopped, Frick Says

The Brooklyn club also was involved in stormy games with the Cardinals and Giants in which bean ball charges flew indiscriminately. Frick emphasized the fact that he was not going into any long investigations as to which pitcher started a bean ball duel, or the background of any feud.

"It has got to be stopped before anybody gets injured, and if this ($200 fine) doesn't do it, I'll think of something else," he declared.

Rain Insurance On Tournament Benefits USO

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP)—USO is $1,450 richer today although the men's singles and doubles titles and the women's doubles crown of the Eastern Grass Court Tennis Tournament were decided.

Club officials paid $550 for weather insurance that returned $3,000 if Saturday's semi-finals could not be held and $2,000 if Sunday's finals were postponed. When weather conditions yesterday made play impossible, the insurance company paid off—with the profits going to USO.

Ted Schroeder and Seymour Greenberg were to have met for the title won a year ago by Frankie Kovacs. Because of other tournament engagements it is unlikely that a 1942 champion will be decided. A doubles title definitely will not be determined, Charles Mattman reporting to the navy today and William Talbert hurrying home to meet with his draft board. They were to have played Schroeder and Sidney B. Wood for the crown.

Baltimore Woman Is Medalist in Golf Tournament

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP)—Leading the favorite by six strokes, Mrs. T. E. Schludenberg of Baltimore, today captured medal honors in the Women's Middle Atlantic Golf championship at the Congressional Country Club.

Mrs. Schludenberg shot a 41-38—79 to take the honors from Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, Maryland state champion and favorite in the tourney, who came in second with a 45-40—85.

For match play beginning tomorrow, Mrs. Schludenberg drew Mrs. William H. Wise of Bethesda, as her opponent. Mrs. Wise turned in a 46-47—93 in the medal round opening the tourney.

Mrs. Stokes was matched with Mrs. T. O. Brandon of Chevy Chase, who also had a 93 today, going out in 49 and coming in with a 44.

WORLD SERIES TALK IS STRICTLY TABOO FOR YANKS, DODGERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—This is one of those years in big league baseball when it is very hard to preserve the amenities. The other day someone asked Mr. Leo Durocher, Brooklyn's inspired manager, how he thought his young left-handed pitcher, Max Macon, would make out against the Yankees in the World Series.

"Well, I'll tell you," began the Lip, and then gave a sudden gulp as he perceived the social error in which he had almost fallen. "What World Series?" barked the Lip, angrily.

A ball club may be leading the pennant race from here to Cairo, but until the day the dry goods are mathematically clinched, etiquette requires the winning manager and players to take a stately and courteous ignorance of what is going on.

McCarthy a Deaf Mute

Mr. Joe McCarthy is the world's outstanding part-time deaf mute in this respect. The phrase "no speak English" was invited by Mr. McCarthy to protect himself against World Series questions in August. Mr. McCarthy has required protection of this kind almost constantly since 1915, and the strain is beginning to tell on the Yankee manager. It has taken at least a couple of years off his life.

To pretend not to know that the Yankees are going to win the pennant, and to do it year after year, requires real fortitude. Mr. McCarthy has it. Some of the players are weaker vessels, and now, in their sixth pennant year of the last seven, they show signs of cracking. The mask is coming loose at the seams.

The other day, for instance, Joe DiMaggio said something about clinching the pennant in early September. Then, instead of cutting out his guilty tongue with a knife, as the laws of society demand after such a faux pas, Mr. DiMaggio went on to converse about his batting average as nonchalantly as though nothing had happened.

With his men weakening all around him in this fashion, how long can Mr. McCarthy, the resolute and tongue-tied leader, hold out? My hunch is that Joseph will lose in the towel before another week has passed and concede that there is a vague possibility of another World Series at Yankee Stadium this fall.

What makes his problem tougher than usual this year is the fact that the series will be dedicated to digging up more cast for the armed services. This calls for a rich venue—the Yankee Stadium every day of the series, where 80,000 people can pay to see each game. Instead of the usual switching back and forth between National League park and American League park. Keep this under your hat, but the Br—ly-n park is pretty small.

Third Degree Coming

Naturally, series plans must go settled as soon as possible, and this makes it hard for Mr. McCarthy to pretend that he manages his team blindfolded. If he doesn't talk soon, they will take him down to headquarters and slip him the third degree.

Mr. Leo Durocher will be a harder nut to crack. The Lip is new to the business of winning pennants. His resistance to public statements is great—I mean, of course, in respect to the World Series, for otherwise he has no resistance at all. If they put the screws on Leo, he can use the St. Louis Cardinals for protection. The Cards are too far behind the Dodgers to be truly dangerous, but at least they have a chance, which is more than you can say the runners-up in the American League. By insisting on a mortal fear of the St. Louis team, Mr. Durocher can avoid conceding himself the pennant for weeks and weeks to come.

This will give the National League an edge over its rival in social deportment. It will keep Brooklyn faithful to Emily Post. It will preserve the conventions. It will make the Yankees look like cads who kissed and told. And nobody will ever trust them with a secret again.

Make Big Splash In National Meet

Wide World Features

NEENAH, Wis. — Pretty Brenda Helser, the Portland, Ore., sprinter, is the one defending champion who is sure to have serious competition in the national women's A.A.U. swimming championship here August 14-16. Her chief rival will be Marilyn Sahner, the 16-year-old New York girl who was the surprise winner of the 100-yard championship in the national indoor races some months ago.

Unsung contenders may dethrone other champions, too, but Miss Helser is the one titleholder who knows in advance she has a fight on her hands. Two who are figured almost certain winners are Helen Crienkovich, diving queen for several years, and Gloria Callen, the Nyack, N. Y., beauty who is tops in the backstroke.

Nancy Merkl from Portland appears too good in the 800 and 1500 meters, while Betty Bemis of Indianapolis in the 400 meters and little Patty Aspinall of Indianapolis in the 200-meter breaststroke are not expected to have much trouble.

There'll be a new winner in the 300-meter medley because the war will prevent Chieko Miyamoto of Hawaii from competing. Portland's fine relay team — known as the Cody kids — will have a new member this year, Mary Ann Hansen. She joins Miss Merkl, Miss Helser, and Suzanne Zimmerman, replacing Joyce Macrae.

A Long Island youngster from Port Washington, 18-year-old Ann Ross, hopes to give Miss Crienkovich a run for the title in the springboard dive.

Maybe a Record

Football, late this month, has a chance to set a new record. There will be two games played late in August that together may reach the 200,000 count.

One is in Chicago between the All-Stars and the Chicago Bears. The other is in Los Angeles between Wallace Wade's Army team and the Washington Redskins.

Both are playing in stadiums or stadia that can park or seat over 100,000 spectators. Both will be great football games. Neither can miss. And in addition both are played largely for the Army Emergency Relief. Here and there we have had football games that drew 100,000 or more spectators—Army and Navy in Philadelphia, Notre Dame and Southern California at Los Angeles.

But the prospect of having two games in August draw 100,000 each is something that never happened to football before.

The Two Starters

These are the two starters. There is no question but that the Chicago game will pass the 100,000 mark. This game will net the army fund well over $100,000.

If the Los Angeles Army-Redskins game is properly promoted this should be another capacity affair. It shouldn't miss.

The West Coast is one of football's high spots. A short while back the West Coast was badly worried over the thought that big time and big crowd football was over for the duration.

But looking after Army Relief needs, General DeWitt has removed all barricades.

The fact that these two games are for war relief wouldn't sell out either place.

They must stand or fall on their merits—as attractions the public wants to see. This is something that can be guaranteed.

Under Way

In the wake of these two opening contests that should set a new attendance record, September will then break loose with even more action.

With Wallace Wade on the west coast, limited to a short training season, Bob Neyland is at New Haven getting his Army squad ready for the Giant game at the Polo Grounds, another certain sell out. Major Wade's legion marches eastward through Denver and Milwaukee in the direction of the Atlantic. Colonel Neyland's squad remains in the east. Either coach can interchange men that are needed.

They have little time to get squads ready who have been at army work. The same is true of the professional teams, who in addition have lost close to 100 of their best men from the 1941 rosters. The pro teams are already hard at it, knowing the opposition they must face.

Messrs. Owen, Halas, Lambeau and others may have the advantage of using men well set and trained under their systems, but they still have to face teams that are packed with football power and skill.

Each one of these Army-Pro games is sure to be a bitter, thrilling contest.

None of them can miss. They don't have to be sold on any charity angle. The millions who love football will more than get their money's worth.

Another Angle

The question has been raised along this line—in the middle of the world's greatest war, why should there be any place for football or any other game?

The answer to this is quite simple. It takes in three points—

1. Badly needed financial aid.
2. Physical conditioning, with these Army-Pro games getting a much bigger football program under way.
3. Morale—a much abused word, but one that happens to fit in the present situation.

Whether right or wrong both Army and Navy want more football played this fall than the country has ever known before.

I think both are right. There may be a few flaws in this arrangement, but the good far overrides the bad.

So we are now stepping into a record breaking football season. Whether this will be the last for some time is anybody's guess.

The future has a unique way of supplying its own answers.

Dodgers Wallop Phils 6 to 0 in Twilight Game

Kirby Higbe Blanks His Former Teammates on Four Safe Blows

BROOKLYN, Aug. 10 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers collected only six hits off three Philadelphia pitchers this evening but turned them into as many runs to win a twilight-night game, 6-0, as Kirby Higbe blanked the Phils on four safeties.

The victory, which snapped a three-game losing streak for the Dodgers, enabled them to regain their nine-game lead in the National League over the St. Louis Cardinals, who bowed to the Pittsburgh Pirates this afternoon.

Southpaw Frank Hoerst started for the Phils and lasted only five frames, during which he yielded five hits and four runs.

Joe Medwick drove in the first Dodger run with a double which scored Pete Reiser in the opening frame and Pee Wee Reese connected for his third home run of the year in the third with the bases empty.

Ike Pearson, who followed Hoerst to the slab, was nicked for a two-run double by Dolph Camilli in the eighth and St. Johnson was called in to finish the game.

Hoerst was sworn in as an ensign in the naval reserve earlier today and will report for active duty Sept. 10.

Charles Town Track Contributes $94,505 Toward Charity Fund

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 10 (AP)—West Virginia's little Charles Town track has contributed $94,505.12 toward a nationwide charity fund of $2,000,000 from the racing industry and Beverly Brown of Charleston is well pleased with the showing.

Brown, president of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners, says his state has "outstripped and far surpassed" all others of the union in the proportion of track proceeds contributed to war relief and civilian charities.

The $2,000,000 goal from receipts of this year's race meeting was set by a special committee of five, including representatives of both national groups of racing commissioners and jockey club officials.

The Charles Town track usually operates forty-four days in the spring, but this year it applied for only twenty-six days of racing and the remaining eighteen days were conducted solely for charity.

The $94,505.12 fund was divided forty percent to army relief, forty percent to navy relief and the remaining twenty per cent was apportioned among state charities.

Athletics Hold New York Yanks To an Even Split

A's Beat Ruffing in First Game 4 to 1; Bonham Takes Second 3-2

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics clipped Red Ruffing for four hits in one inning today and stopped the New York Yankees, 4-1, in the first game of a doubleheader but Ernie Bonham hurled the American League leaders to a 3-2 decision and an even split in the nightcap.

Ruffing and Dick Fowler hooked up in a sparkling mound duel for six scoreless innings of the opener, but both weakened in the seventh.

The Athletics, who got only one hit in six frames, opened their rally with two men out in the seventh when Pete Suder smashed a single too hot for Red Rolfe to handle. Bob Johnson doubled Suder to third and Dick Siebert drew an intentional pass to load the bases.

Then Buddy Blair smashed a hard liner that got away from Charlie Keller in deep left center and went for a triple, clearing the sacks. Larry Davis brought Blair in with a single.

Bonham hurled six-hit ball in the second game, shading Luman Harris, who yielded only seven blows before stepping down for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

NO CARDS WORTHLESS AS A GENERALITY, it is well to proceed on the assumption that no card is worthless. Though some insignificant little one may not take a trick, it may be useful for signaling or for promoting a higher card in your own hand or partner's, or for upsetting the plans of your opponents in one way or another. This is especially true of little trumps. Putting one on a trick and getting over-ruffed may prevent the other fellow from taking a discard on the card you ruff.

North had his nerve to make that jump direct to slam, from 4♥ to 6♥, and East had some of his own to double the contract with the heart bidder seated at his left, where the long trumps sat over him and got last whack at heart tricks. After the deal North said his bid was based partly on the fact that he did not consider his opponents strong defensive players. As it turned out, he was right.

South won the spade K with the dummy's A, raked in the club Q, A and K, discarding the spade 3, and was pleased to see the J drop. Counting West as possibly being out of trumps, in view of East's double, he now led the established club 10. Right there is where the fate of the contract rested. West did not ruff this and compel North to over-ruff. As he said later, that would have wasted his trump. Instead, he discarded a spade, whereupon the spade 6 was tossed from the dummy. Next came the diamond K, A and 5, ruffed by the heart 6—shortening his own trumps for a later possible coup if West had held one small trump and refused to ruff that spade trick. The spade 10 was then ruffed in the dummy by the heart A, and the heart 9 led. East covered this with the 10 and the J won. The Q was then sent to the K and East had to lead from the 7-2 into the 8-3. No matter how East played his trumps, after the lead of the 9, he could get only one trick.

If West had ruffed the club 10 on the fifth trick, South would have had to lose a spade and a heart trick.

Reuben M. Dulin, B. and O. Engineer Kills Himself

Uses Sixteen Gauge Shotgun; Had Been in Ill Health for Some Time

Reuben M. Dulin, 56, a B. and O. railroad engineer, shot and killed himself yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock in his room at 43 Greene street where he boarded. Police said the man had been in ill health for some time and had not been working lately.

Dulin used a sixteen-gauge shotgun which he fired into his head back of the right ear. Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, examined the body and gave a verdict of suicide.

Police found Dulin finely clothed lying on his back in his room with the shotgun across his chest. Nearby, police found a note addressed to Dulin's sister, Mrs. Martha McLain, of Elizabeth, Pa. Another boarder notified the police of the accident.

The note did not give any reason for Dulin's act but said he had mailed all his papers, checks, and other effects to Mrs. McLain and wishes her to come here and get his belongings.

Dulin was a native of Newburg, W. Va., and was a son of the late Noah Dulin and Mrs. Florence Dulin, of Elizabeth, Pa. He is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Martha McLain, Elizabeth, Pa.; Mrs. Beattie Hartman, Fairmont, W. Va.; Miss Cornelia Dulin, Youngstown, O.; and two other sisters whose names could not be learned last night. Three brothers also survive, John, of Youngstown, O.; Frank, of Homestead, Pa.; and Steve Dulin, Keyser, W. Va.

Officers John Newhouse, Raymond R. Johnston, Fred Neus, Theodore M. Rose, Detective Benjamin F. Gaffney, Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, and Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney, investigated. The body was taken to the Hager funeral home pending arrangements to be made by Dulin's family.

33 Girls Spend Final Two Weeks At Kiwanis Camp

125 Boys, Girls Were Guests at Sunshine Camp in Past Six Weeks

Thirty-three girls are the guests of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at the Kiwanis Sunshine Camp, MacDonald terrace, for the final two weeks' period ending Monday, August 24.

One hundred and twenty-five boys and girls have spent two weeks at the camp during the past six weeks, according to Joseph W. Young, camp director.

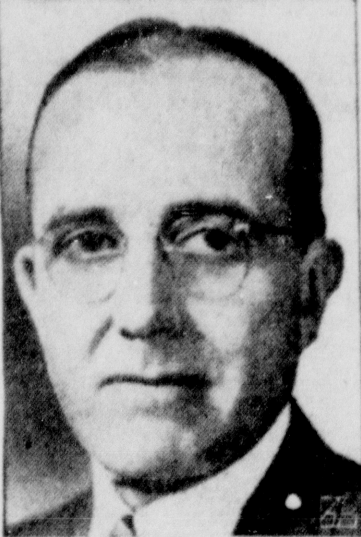

A program of athletic activities, games and swimming has been arranged for the final two weeks of the 1942 season.

Counselors at the camp are the Misses Thelma Young, Elizabeth Ann Lowe, Jean Hazelwood and Evelyn Lashley. Miss Marie Jones and Miss Helen MacFarlane are the Junior leaders.

Girls who answered the roll call at camp yesterday include:

Ann Alderman, Virginia Billard, Patricia Bost, Ramona Dycher, Lillian Eaton, May Ann Evans, Shirley Gray, Hallie George, Mary Groves, Mary Lou Hager, Hilda Mae Higgins, Alma Lee Hoser, Mary Landacre, Louise Lowery, Jean MacFarlane, Betty Poole, Shirley Raupach, Betty Lee Siraugh.

Dolores Thelma, Helen Twigg, Edna Winfield, Pauline Murray, Edna Mae Evans, Dora Smith, Ruby Rosely, Doris Gages, Virginia Boyd, Georgia Carithers, Gladys Gordon, Doris Miller, Agnes Reed, Dona Wilson and Norma Cabbage.

GUEST OF FAIR — Mayor Richard H. Sweeney, of Hagerstown, and party will be guests of the Cumberland Fair Association today as the final half of the ten-day race meeting gets under way. Sweeney will be introduced from the platform in front of the grandstand. Today will be observed as "Hagerstown and Proeburg" day, according to Harry A. Manley, president and general manager of the fair.

Canned-Heaters Seen as a Local Social Problem

Check of Police Docket Shows Repeated Arrests Almost Useless

Cumberland's not too popular "canned-heat gang" came in for some criticism yesterday at the meeting of the mayor and city council, when a communication was read from members of the city's civil service commission, calling attention to the conduct of these "gentlemen of leisure."

The communication signed by C. Philip Jolley, H. Clifford Spiker and Jesse W. Korra, who comprise the commission, stated that a group of able-bodied men, generally known as "can-heaters" assemble on Baltimore street near the Baltimore and Ohio crossing and act in a disgraceful manner.

They use "obscene language," approach local people and strangers asking for "hand-outs" and when they are given money, usually buy "hair-tons" or some other concoction which they drink. The letter expressed the opinion that the condition is a disgraceful one and reflects badly on the city.

Arrested Many Times — Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney stated the police might keep them scattered and break up their congregation at this point. Most of their time is spent in jail, which doesn't disturb them greatly. They are not vicious criminals, the solicitor said, and harm only themselves. Commissioner of Police and Fire James Orr said that some of the men were arrested as many as twelve times in the past two months.

A number of local police officers commenting upon this situation express the opinion that the problem is as much a local social problem as it is a police headache. Practically every member of the local "canned-heat gang" has a police record that looks like a stock market report.

Investigation of the city police docket shows that since January 16, 1941, practically every member of the "canned-heat crowd" has been arrested repeatedly. Two typical cases, checked last night show that since January 16, 1941, one man who uses the name of Joe Koelker has been arrested thirty-nine times and another, under the name of Ben Smith has been arrested thirty-eight times.

16 Arrested This Month — Police say there are about eighteen of these individuals. When they are arrested, and at least one is taken to jail almost every day, they are usually charged with drunkenness, loitering and very often panhandling.

When arraigned for trial after a night in jail police say, almost as often as not sentence is suspended by police magistrates, and the men are again at liberty to continue loitering and panhandling. Jailing them seems to do no good.

"Sport of Kings", Horse Racing, Is One of Oldest Sports on Record

First Bit of Publicity Is Found in Papyrus Letter Left by King Thutmose I of Egypt; King Solomon Was Lover of Sport

When local and yokel horse fans, horse flies, and disciples of horse flesh flock to the pari-mutuel windows today at Fairgo, as the 1942 race meet enters its second week, they will be following one of the oldest sports in the annals of sports history.

Called the "sport of kings" because it has been one of royalty's amusements since the earliest dawn of civilization, horse racing finds its first bit of publicity in a papyrus letter left by King Thutmose I of Egypt whose mummy might have borne a priority label dated 1501 B.C.

Old "Thutmy", a free giving Thutmose, himself, a prize blows up for his conquest of Mesopotamia by which he made acquisition of the racing horse (the Arab) and so was the first to introduce him as such

Maccabean Post Drum Corps Will March in Parade

All-Jewish Unit Won Second Prize in 1940 Legion Contest Here

Maccabean Post No. 32, Sons of the American Legion, all-Jewish organization of Baltimore, is the latest musical organization to enter the parade to be held here Friday, August 28, in conjunction with the Maryland Department American Legion convention.

Dr. Alvin H. Berman, adjutant of Maccabean post, yesterday advised Thomas F. Conlon, parade marshal, that twenty-two members of the Maccabean post drum and bugle corps will participate in the parade and also will compete in the department junior drum and bugle corps contest at the Fort Hill high school stadium. Jack B. Morgan is commander of the Maccabean post.

The crack Baltimore unit finished as runner-up to the championship drum and bugle corps of Hamilton Post No. 20, of Baltimore, in the department contest here two years ago. Hamilton took first prize of $165 and Maccabean post was awarded $103 as the runner-up reward.

Conlon also was advised yesterday that the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, of Baltimore, comprising forty-five members, with Clarence E. Cole in charge, will participate in the convention parade.

Council Passes Resolution For Former Mayor

Routine Matters Occupy City Officials at Regular Session

After passing a resolution of respect for the late Mayor Harry Irvine who died last week, the mayor and city council considered a number of communications, complaints, reports and routine orders at their regular session yesterday.

A petition was submitted by a number of residents on Oldtown road asking that an alley between Oldtown road and Arundel street be improved to prevent water flooding their properties. The petition was referred to the street department.

A group of residents from First street complained that children riding scooters and roller skates on sidewalks had knocked down several residents, and used abusive language when told to discontinue the practice of using the sidewalk for skating. The complaint was referred to the police department and action was promised by Police Commissioner James Orr.

The following balances were reported: General, $222,578.26; water operating, $46,732.83; general improvement bond, $31,761.12, and sewer bonds of 1931, $8,726.55.

Fifty dollars was voted to F. Harry Rockwell of the Western Maryland Motor Club to cover costs of equipment and parades in connection with the School Boy patrol; Walter W. White was ordered refunded $19 for a building permit he is unable to use, and the Salvation Army was given $100 for charity work with transients.

A letter from Mrs. Hannah Struckman Allomong asking that Waverly Terrace be improved, was referred to the street department.

A letter from Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, approving additional improvements for Memorial hospital but asking that no aliens be employed at the hospital was referred to Mayor Thomas F. Conlon.

Motorist Is Charged With Careless Driving

Alvin Thomas, Route 5, was arrested at 12:45 p. m. yesterday by Officer L. L. Youngblood on a careless driving charge. Thomas posted bond of $10 for a hearing in police court this morning.

Another ODT order provides that freight train schedules must be discontinued inasmuch as some trains are unable to operate on schedule because of war demands.

Although schedules will not be issued, railroads must continue to move freight as rapidly as possible.

A half-cent increase per mile in passenger fares for trains operating in the southern states has been authorized by the ODT. It was disclosed at the meeting. The increase from 15 cents to 20 cents places Southern fares on the same standard that have been operative in this area.

In the sports field, automobile and motorcycle racing is prohibited as of July 31, according to another ODT regulation. Operation of the restriction was postponed from an earlier date because many races

Monday, August 10, 1942. Greetings Boys: Twenty-one Cumberland residents have filed applications for positions on the Cumberland police force and examinations will be given Thursday night. Men with the ten highest grades will be recommended for places on the force. . . . Lieut. Keith D. Brown, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Brown, of Pittsburgh, and a nephew of Mrs. Robert LeRoy Critchfield, this city, had to "ball out" when the Japs shot plane from under him at 18,000 feet. Brown escaped with a broken arm and slight burns. . . . Cumberland's two companies in the state guard returned home late Sunday after undergoing a week's intensive training at Camp O'Connor, Cascade, Md. . . . The local companies plan to increase the strength of the outfits and volunteers between eighteen and fifty are sought.

The 1942 Cumberland agricultural fair opened at Fairgo today and will run through Saturday in conjunction with racing which will be resumed tomorrow. . . . A feature of the fair will be a horse pulling contest to be held Thursday night. . . . Rosenbaum's store sold almost $80,000 worth of war savings bonds and stamps during the "Retailers for Victory" drive conducted in July. . . . Miss Margaret Newcomer, who sold the greatest amount of bonds and stamps during the drive.

Harry A. Porch, general chairman of the B. of L. P. and E. has been named a member of War Price and Rationing Board No. 1-1 here and becomes the fourth member of the board. . . . Mrs. Katherine E. Byron, who represents the Sixth district in Congress withdrew Friday for renomination on the Democratic ticket. . . . Committees have been named here to collect scrap metal in Allegany county. Guess this is about all until later in the week. Best wishes.

Explaining the difference in the figures for Baltimore and Cumberland, Webster pointed out that Baltimore is greatly over-populated. The Cumberland population has remained "pretty static" inasmuch as nothing particular has "happened here to build it up," he related, "and there are no fly-by-night concerns here."

Now Carriers Per Person — Webster pointed out, too, that seventeen foot carriers serve a population here of about 42,000 while upwards of 800 postmen serve an estimated Baltimore population of about a million. In other words, more than forty-seven times as many Baltimore carriers serve about twenty-four times the population that Cumberland carries do.

One trend, however, that has affected Cumberland as well as the rest of the nation is that there has been a slight decrease in postal receipts for the past six months. And the decrease is caused by the war, postal officials say. Industries now are working full time on war contracts and are confining their mail strictly to office matters.

Before the war, there was considerable advertising done through the mails by various industries but now, since they have been converted to war work, they have nothing to advertise for sale.

MINE WATER FLOOD RESULTS IN CLAIM OF $1,500 DAMAGES — A damage suit for a claim of $1,500 was entered in circuit court yesterday by Charles D. Smith, through his attorney Albert A. Doub, Jr., against the Campbell Coal Company, for a washout of his property, caused when impounded mine water broke out and created a miniature flood.

The suit is based on the contention that the water was in an abandoned coal mine located on the company's property and Smith explains that he owns a parcel of land adjacent, which was flooded and damaged when the water broke out of the mine.

The miniature flood occurred April 13, the action claims, and destroyed vegetation, impregnated the soil with sulphur, caused deep valleys, gullies and washouts and generally damaged the Smith property. The plaintiff charges the company with negligence in permitting the water to accumulate in the abandoned working.

Man in "Poor Condition" After Suffering Stroke; Three Persons Injured — William Parsons, 76, 217 Union street, was in a "poor condition" in Memorial hospital last night as the result of a stroke he suffered at 11 o'clock Sunday night.

Parsons was found unconscious in the cellar of the Hammersmith building on Queen City pavement and was taken to the hospital receiving room by Officers John G. Powers and E. M. Powell.

Mrs. Mary Mallow was admitted to Allegany hospital at 12:15 a. m. yesterday for treatment of a fracture of her left leg, suffered in a fall.

Robert Burger, 11, son of Guy Burger, Bedford road, was treated in Allegany hospital at 1:45 p. m. yesterday after he fractured his arm in a fall from a tree near his home.

Arnie McIntyre, 29, 350 Baltimore avenue, was treated in Allegany hospital at 2 a. m. yesterday for a head injury.

Baltimore District Will Nominate Legion Officers — BALTIMORE, Aug. 10 (AP)—A caucus of the Baltimore district, Maryland Department American Legion, will nominate nine executive committee members and a vice-commander tomorrow.

Nominees will be submitted to the state convention at Cumberland, Aug. 26-29. Retiring vice-commander is Joseph A. O'Grady.

Amount of Mail Delivered Here Has Not Increased

Carriers Here Have Average of 900 to 1,000 Pieces Daily

Despite current reports from Baltimore that mail has doubled over the amount that normally goes into households there, James W. Webster, assistant Cumberland postmaster, said yesterday that there has been no increase in the pieces of mail received by Cumberlanders.

In fact, he explained, mail in the months of July, August and September is a little lighter than in other months of the year.

Figures released by Baltimore postal officials on the volume of mail there shows an average of 920 pieces per carrier per day, while in the boom years of the twenties foot carriers averaged but 650 pieces of letter and paper mail daily. During the depression period, the average number per carrier dropped to approximately 450.

Cumberland postal officials, however, don't think the Baltimore boom average of 920 pieces is particularly high.

Maintain 900 Average Here — Carriers here have "averaged" 900 to 1,000 pieces a day for years, Webster said, adding that one postman in the business section averages close to 1,100 pieces of mail daily.

March figures indicate an average of 949 pieces daily per carrier in uptown Cumberland, Webster explained, while at Station A on Virginia avenue the daily average per carrier is 905 pieces.

Even in the depression years here, there was not much difference in the average number of pieces of mail delivered although Webster was quick to add, there were not quite as many carriers then as there are now.

Explaining the difference in the figures for Baltimore and Cumberland, Webster pointed out that Baltimore is greatly over-populated. The Cumberland population has remained "pretty static" inasmuch as nothing particular has "happened here to build it up," he related, "and there are no fly-by-night concerns here."

Now Carriers Per Person — Webster pointed out, too, that seventeen foot carriers serve a population here of about 42,000 while upwards of 800 postmen serve an estimated Baltimore population of about a million. In other words, more than forty-seven times as many Baltimore carriers serve about twenty-four times the population that Cumberland carries do.

One trend, however, that has affected Cumberland as well as the rest of the nation is that there has been a slight decrease in postal receipts for the past six months. And the decrease is caused by the war, postal officials say. Industries now are working full time on war contracts and are confining their mail strictly to office matters.

Before the war, there was considerable advertising done through the mails by various industries but now, since they have been converted to war work, they have nothing to advertise for sale.

McKeldin To Attend Fairgo Races Today

Theodore R. McKeldin, of Baltimore, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Maryland, will attend the races at Fairgo today and will present the trophy after one of the feature races, Harry Manley announced last night.

This will be McKeldin's first visit to Allegany county since he announced several weeks ago that he would seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination. He spoke in Hagerstown last night.

Letter Explains Sgt. Shank Died In Plane Crash

Local Man Was Bombardier on Airplane Shot Down at Midway

Sgt. Aaron D. Shank, 23, this city, who was reported "missing in action" after the battle off Midway Island in the Pacific is presumed to have died when the bomber on which he was a bombardier plunged into the ocean, according to a letter received here from Captain George E. Glover, a member of his squadron.

Major Gen. Clarence V. Tinker, was in command of the bombing squadron and was in the plane along with Sgt. Shank, the letter stated. Shank's widow, the former Miss Theresa Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett, this city, was in receipt of the letter recently. Shank was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shank, Broadway, near Harrisonburg, Va.

Shank enlisted in the United States Air Corps January 19, 1940, and saw action at Hickam Field, Honolulu, on December 7. He returned to the States March 1, 1942, and was married to Miss Theresa Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett, this city, on March 26. He remained in this country until May 31, when he was ordered back to Hawaii, making the journey by air, and two weeks later he was reported to Mrs. Shank as missing. She traveled with him until May 31.

Local Soldier Gets Citation For Bravery — A citation for courageous deeds has been received by Staff Sgt. Paul W. Hendrickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hendrickson, Bedford road. He is now home on leave from the Pacific battle fronts and will soon enter officers' training school at Aberdeen, Md.

Hendrickson, a veteran of a year-and-a-half of service in Hawaii, was cited by Col. Custis, Ordnance Department, for his bravery in action at Hickam field during the sneak raid by the Japanese on December 7. He was also aboard one of the supply planes at the battle of Midway, witnessing the historic engagement from 15,000 feet.

In relating his experiences of the surprise raid on Pearl Harbor, Hendrickson said he at first thought the bombing was a practice session by the navy. "We saw the bombs falling in and around Pearl Harbor but didn't realize what was happening until flames began shooting high into the air," the local soldier said.

Before we could get organized the raiders were dropping their deadly missiles on us. We were a little scared at first but when our forces realized the cowardly stunt which was being pulled, they became fighting mad and soon were in the thick of the fight," he added.

Hendrickson, who enlisted two years ago, was also honored with a medal for good conduct. He is a graduate of Allegany high school, 1934.

City To Revise WPA Projects On Local Airport

War Department Declines Approval on Applications in Present Form

Although the mayor and city council have been notified by Edward F. Hoover, WPA area engineer, that the War department has refused higher priority ratings and additional project approval for the Cumberland airport, the opinion is expressed here that the port can ultimately be completed.

The information declining approval, contained in several letters from Hoover, came as a shock to city officials, who had been led to believe that the applications for projects four, five and six, were being considered favorably. It is still believed here that the projects can be revised in such a manner that they will be approved.

Say Projects Not Warranted — E. F. McCauley, director of airports and airport projects of WPA, basing his opinion on War department rulings wrote, "authority to start construction of units four, five and six does not appear warranted".

Concerning priorities, Hoover wrote, a higher rating "cannot be recommended by the War Production Board", and a letter from Maury Maverick, chief of the Bureau of Governmental Requirements, stated "at the present time the army air forces see no need for an airport or lighting facilities at the subject location".

Under projects already approved and under construction, it will be possible to complete runway No. 1 and also runway No. 3. The pipeline for water which was included has already been completed. After the work on the airport is finished, members of the Airport commission and other local officials believe contact with the War department or Civil Aeronautics Authority will result in approval of additional projects. In the meantime, however, plans are underway to revise the three rejected projects and submit them again in revamped form at a lower cost figure.

Further Projects Necessary — The rejected projects include excavation of the area for hangars and parking, construction of runways No. 2 and 4, and a main road on runway No. 1 so it can be extended from 4,300 feet to 6,000 feet, and removal of a total of about 1,550,000 cubic yards of dirt obstruction. In a revised form, it may be possible to get approval on some of this work. But if it is obtained, completion of existing projects will give the city an airport with two runways, instead of four. Much other desirable construction, however will not be possible unless further projects are approved.

TWO AUTO DRIVERS FORFEIT BONDS

Two drivers forfeited bond and one received a suspended sentence yesterday in trial magistrates' court on charges of violating state motor laws.

Revised Plan for the Collection Of Scrap Metal Is Discussed Here

Committee Will Be Set Up To Zone City and Arrange for Trucks

Plans for the collection of scrap metals in Cumberland were furthered last night when members of the committee met at the chamber of commerce office to discuss revised methods of getting in scrap metals which can be found in private homes, garages and mercantile establishments.

The revised plan will utilize the same method which is used on the garbage collection days which are held each year whereby residents place all unwanted junk along the sidewalk for collection by trucks.

A committee will be set up to zone the city and arrange for trucks to collect scrap metals on designated days in various sections of the city. The trucks will then take the junk
